Ford Plants Closing Down Due To Strike

50,000 Face Layoff In Shortage Of Vital Sheet Metal Parts

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co., the nation's second-largest automobile manufacturing empire, began shutting down all of its passenger car operations Friday because of a strike at a vital stamping plant.

Upwards of 50,000 production workers were to be idled at the end of second shift operations Friday night.

At issue is a work standards dispute which erupted in a strike at the Walton Hills stamping plant near Cleveland eight days ago. The plant is the major source of hoods, doors, roofs, trunk lids and fenders for all Ford models except the Lincoln Continental.

Negotiators Meet Saturday

Top level negotiators of Ford and the United Auto Workers Union indicated some progress was being made towards a settlement when they recessed their five-hour session late Friday until 1 p.m. Saturday.

M.M. (Mike) Cummings, Ford's labor relations director, said "We are getting a better understanding on where we are going."

Cummings told newsmen they could read in his statement a slight note of optimism but advised them to emphasize slight.

Ken Bannon, director of the union's Ford department, commented, "It appears that we are making progress and that we are on the right road."

Earlier during an afternoon break, Gene Prato, chairman of the union's national Ford committee, said nothing had been accomplished at the morning session.

Work Quotas At Issue

The Walton Hills plant was one of the last to settle local grievances during Ford national negotiations on a new three-year contract with the UAW last fall. The union says work quotas on some jobs at the plant are too high and claims the company backed out of an agreement to ease them. The company says the quotas are consistent with those prevailing elsewhere.

Ford operates 16 passenger car assembly plants. Three already have closed, at Wixom and Dearborn, Mich., and Kansas City, Mo. The others worked through Friday.

Astronaut Sees Heart Expert

BOSTON (AP)—Astronaut Donald K. (Deke) Slayton paid a visit to Boston Friday for an examination by heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White.

Dr. White, who was called in for consultation at the time of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's heart attack, met Slayton at his Beacon Street office.

The physician said he would not have comment to make for several days.

Earlier, he said he would report his findings directly to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration medical team working with the astronauts.

Officials said White was asked his opinion on whether a pilot with heart fibrillation—irregular heart rate—would be fit to fly a space mission.

Khrushchev Leaves On Trip To Romania

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev took a train Friday for Romania after a fervent station farewell with former President Klementi Y. Voroshilov, 80.

The premier, walking through flag-spangled Kiev Station to board his private train, seized the veteran Bolshevik, who was violently denounced as anti-party at last October's 22nd Communist party congress, and kissed him squarely on the mouth.

Flight Engineers Reject JFK Plea

STRIKE THREAT RENEWED

—Ronald A. Brown, president of the Flight Engineers International Association, talks during a news conference in Washington yesterday. Brown, announcing the engineers are again turning down President Kennedy's proposal to submit all disputed issues with three big airlines to arbitration, renewed a strike threat with a deadline of sometime after 2:30 p.m. EDT today.

Berlin To Mark Anti-Red Revolt Anniversary

BERLIN (AP)—A city saddened by the border killing of a 12-year-old refugee boy organized a massive rally for Sunday to mark the ninth anniversary of the East German uprising against communism.

East Germany announced Friday it has delivered sharp formal notes to the Western Allies protesting the planned appearance of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer at the rally.

Determined that no frivolity should mar a solemn observance of the anniversary, West Berlin youth movements ordered their members to stage sitdown strikes at a railway station and bus terminal to block the usual Sunday exodus of picnickers bound for the beach at Wannsee Lake.

West Berlin police reported the boy victim of the latest shooting by East German guards fell last Sunday as he sought to escape to the West. They said he was shot in the lungs and lay for an hour on a sports field before he was carried away.

Because the shooting took place on the East side of the Communist wall, West police did not get details immediately. The death brought the known number of killings along the wall to 36.

East German Communists have frequently lashed out against Adenauer visits to West Berlin. But their annoyance at such visits has never before taken the form of an official protest to the West. The West Big Three are unlikely to take notice of the protest since they have no diplomatic relations with East Germany.

Union Renews Strike Threat; Deadline Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting a strong plea from President Kennedy, flight engineers stood pat Friday on their refusal to arbitrate the key issue of their dispute with three major airlines — cockpit job rights.

The Flight Engineers International Association linked to the shutdown a renewed strike threat, with a deadline of sometime after 1:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday.

A walkout would idle Pan American, Eastern Air Lines and Trans World Airways and immobilize 40 per cent of the nation's commercial airline service. The three airlines transport an average of 60,000 domestic and 20,000 overseas passengers daily.

The deadlocking issue is the proposal to cut the crews of the big jets from four men to three by combining the duties of engineer and third pilot. The engineers want assurance that they will hold onto one cockpit job.

"We will give them a reasonable time to respond before calling a strike," Ronald A. Brown, the engineers' president told newsmen. Later he said 24 hours after the end of his news conference would be reasonable.

The AFL-CIO union renewed its acceptance of the government's proposal to arbitrate pay and other issues, at least with two of the airlines, Pan American and Eastern. The union's TWA branch, however, reiterated its refusal to submit any of the issues to arbitration.

All three airlines had accepted the government's arbitration proposal on all issues.

After Brown's announcement, both Pan American and Eastern said they remain willing to accept arbitration as recommended by Kennedy — on all issues. The wording seemed to say the airlines want all or nothing arbitration, but neither airline said so directly.

Both Pan American and Eastern said the union was simply making the same demands it did Friday before Kennedy spoke out.

Public Will Make Tape Recordings Of Hurricanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Weather Bureau disclosed Friday at the start of the 1962 hurricane season plans for tape-recording the shrieking winds in the worst of the storms.

The bureau said it would ask the general public to take part in this new study of the structure of hurricanes.

"When a hurricane approaches, public broadcasts will request residents to record the sounds made by the violent winds around the eye," the bureau said.

"The recordings will help bureau scientists analyze the pattern of air flow near the center of hurricanes, where they suspect there may be tornado-like circulations."

Ships, weather-eye satellites, tires, planes and radar will provide weather experts this year with more and better tools than ever before.

ALGIERS (AP) — American sources report U.S. consulates will open in Oran and Constantine under supervision of the Algiers consulate before Algeria's July 1 self-determination vote.

Forced To Perform In Nude, Dancer Says; Complaint To Union Ridiculed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A raven-haired, sultry-eyed dancer testified Friday she was stripped naked on her first night club job and thrust out to perform in a glaring spotlight.

Anita Lopushok, who said she now is known in the night club circuit as Fatima and specializes in Latin-type dances, told Senate investigators she was hooted down when she tried to complain at a union meeting.

"I opened my mouth too wide," she said. "They shut me up."

This and other testimony about alleged collusion between racketeer night club owners and the American Guild of Variety Artists brought Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark. to his feet with a denunciation of what he called a "national disgrace."

McClellan is chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee which is looking into allegations that some AGVA officials have connived with strip and clip joint operators in forcing young girls into prostitution.

One witness, Ann O'Connor, veteran Chicago performer, testified that "these poor kids" working in the neon light belt have been "exploited to the point you wonder if they are not the forgotten citizens."

"I have always felt there was collusion between AGVA and the operators," she said.

The comedienne said AGVA's 45-member board of directors leaves all unfinished business from its meetings to a 15-member executive committee. The committee, she said, serves as a rubber stamp for the union's $31,000

Stock Market Halts Decline With Big Gain

Powerful Advance After 4-Day Drop Comes Near Close

NEW YORK (AP) — Rallying near the close of trading, the stock market snapped a four-session string of losses Friday with a powerful advance.

The gain was the biggest since the May 29 recovery from the May 28 plunge, which was the worst since 1929.

The upward surge in heavy trading raised flagging spirits in Wall Street, which Thursday saw the market averages sink to their lowest levels in many months. The spurt ran counter to the usual doldrums on Fridays, when traders are reluctant to get out on a limb in advance of the weekend.

Half Of Loss Recouped

Despite the magnitude of the gain, it failed to erase even half of the loss accumulated during the four previous sessions.

Brokerage houses reported the advance was inspired by big buy orders from investment funds and institutions. One broker said the demand from those sources was the greatest in a long while.

In the belief that a temporary bottom had been reached, some investment firms sent recommendations to buy to their customers.

Brokers said the demand for stocks was heightened by short covering—the purchase of stocks to replace shares which had been borrowed and sold at higher prices.

It was a rough struggle for the battered market to come out on top for the day.

Rally Carries Through

When the opening trading bell sounded, The Associated Press 60-stock average was at its lowest point since Nov. 2, 1960, and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was at its bottom level since Dec. 12, 1958.

Trading began with an advance on big blocks of shares—an indication that the funds and institutions were back in the market on a substantial scale. Gains melted into losses around mid-day as buying waned. Then another rally got under way and this time it carried through.

The AP average advanced 5.50 to 214.10 and the Dow Jones industrial climbed 15.18 to 578.18. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 1.56 to 55.89.

Court Orders Strike Halted

NEW YORK (AP)—The Justice Department, acting on the orders of President Kennedy, obtained a temporary federal court injunction Friday halting a 2½-month strike at Republic Aviation Corp. The strike halted production of the F105 jet fighter.

The President said it imperiled the national safety and ordered the Justice Department to act under the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

U.S. Dist. Judge Walter Bruchhausen in Brooklyn issued an order halting the strike until a court hearing next Wednesday. Republic then sent telegrams to some 9,000 striking employees telling them to report to work Monday.

An affidavit from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, read to Judge Bruchhausen, declared that the F105 is urgently needed by the Air Force now.

No Parts, No Graduation

Creditors Ask Court Declare Estes Bankrupt

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Billie Sol Estes looked about 150 of his 564 creditors in their eyes Friday from the witness stand and told them under oath that he has no assets hidden in Swiss banks or anywhere else in the world.

Facing his creditors in U.S. District Court, Estes proposed a complicated plan for paying them off. Under it, some creditors would have had to accept 50 cents on a dollar and waive service charges and lawyers' fees.

The creditors rejected it and asked U.S. Dist. Judge R. E. Thomason to declare Estes an involuntary bankrupt. Thomason ordered a hearing for Friday, July 13, on the creditors' petition.

The possibility arose, however, that Estes may be forced into bankruptcy long before July 13 and possibly within a week.

John Cofer and John Dennison, both lawyers for Estes, arranged a meeting in Dallas next week—they did not set a date—with the creditors. The lawyers and creditors will try to work out a plan to avoid bankruptcy at the Dallas meeting.

Judge Thomason told Cofer and Dennison that if nothing comes out of the Dallas meeting to let him know right away and he will adjudicate bankruptcy.

J. F. Hulse of El Paso, chairman of a seven-man creditors' committee, said the creditors will go along with an acceptable plan to pay off the creditors, if Estes can present one.

"But we see no chance now," he said.

Estes filed a 50-page document with the court, showing that he owes $38,387,935.87 and claiming assets of $20,783,155.95. That is, if he sold all of his assets for what he estimates they are worth, he would still need $17,594,779.92 to pay off all his debts.

Hulse told Estes that he had failed to list as liabilities about $2 million in claims.

"This is merely an oversight," Estes said.

Revision Of Watered Ham Label Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department, the loser in a Supreme Court appeal, Friday modified its proposal for the labeling of watered hams.

Under the new regulation issued Friday, smoked hams containing up to 10 per cent added water would be labelled "ham—water added" instead of "imitation" as the department has proposed.

The action followed issuance of a temporary injunction by a federal district court restraining the department from requiring the "imitation" label on such ham and pork products.

Favoritism Shown Firm Bankrolling Estes, Inquiry Told

Company Aided GOP Farm Bill Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — House probers were told Friday that Commercial Solvents Corp. got favored treatment from a Republican Department of Agriculture in 1959 and in 1961 gave GOP leaders subrosa aid in their fight against the Democrats' farm bill.

The political ramifications marked sessions of the House subcommittee's hearing into the affairs of Billie Sol Estes, indicted Texas financier who was bankrolled by Commercial Solvents in extensive liquid fertilizer and grain storage operations.

Maynard C. Wheeler, Commercial Solvents president, described as preposterous the charge of favoritism raised by a subcommittee member, Rep. Ross Bass, D-Tenn.

The subcommittee counsel, James Naughton, sought to establish an anti-Democrat link between Commercial Solvents and top Republicans—including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Naughton sought to do that by reading into the record letters he said were written by Martin Sorkin, identified as a $5,000-a-year Washington consultant for Commercial Solvents. Sorkin has been described by Bass as the company's chief lobbyist.

Naughton described the letters as ones sent to Wheeler by Sorkin, who was a top economic adviser to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson in the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

A letter dated Sept. 11, 1961, told Wheeler of being invited to a secret meeting with Republican congressional leaders for the purpose of developing a continued attack on the farm bill then pending in Congress.

Sorkin wrote that those attending this session included Goldwater.

Students Who Gave Up D.C. Trip To Aid Classmate Will Go After All, See JFK

GLEN LAKE, Mich. (AP)—The 33 graduating seniors of Glen Lake High School will receive a personal pat on the back from President Kennedy—provided they can find a way to get to Washington.

Kennedy invited the students to visit him at the White House as a tribute to the help they've given a cancer-stricken classmate. They had worked for six years to raise enough money for a trip to the nation's capital, but called it off to give financial aid to their ailing friend.

Washington residents who heard of the students' generosity began pledging money for the trip. However, another $900 is needed to pay for transportation, said school Principal Harold E. Sweeney.

"We have pledged to date for $1,600 but we need $2,500 to make the trip," he said.

"We'll drive the students to Detroit in our school bus," Sweeney said, "but we'll have to take a train from there to Washington and back."

He said the graduates—21 boys and 12 girls—had washed cars, sold popcorn and candy, and worked at odd jobs since 1956 to pay for the scheduled trip. But a few months ago, Duane Richardson, 17, star of the school's basketball team, learned he had cancer in his right shoulder.

His classmates decided to turn $700 of their earnings over to Duane's family to help foot bills for surgery and isotope treatment. When newspapers reported this, offers of money came from Washington.

Radio station WWDC said it would send $700 to the graduating class, and others in Washington offered lodging and food. Thursday night, Sweeney told the graduates he learned President Kennedy might invite them to the White House.

"They really cut loose," he said, "cheering, whistling and clapping."

Duane also will be able to make the trip. Sweeney said, "I talked to his mother today and she said the doctors are very optimistic about Duane's chances of recovering."

Duane is a shy, husky, 6-footer who played on Glen Lake's basketball, football and baseball teams. Sweeney called him an above-average student.

Sweeney revealed another act of student generosity. The graduates, he said, had raised nearly $2,500 in the past six years, and, after voting $700 for Duane's cancer treatments, turned the rest of the money over to the school for athletic activities and a year book.

Blasts Wreck Algiers City Hall, Hospital

Big Dam Reported Blown Up, Private Stores Set Ablaze

ALGIERS (AP)—Scorching the earth as they threatened to do, European Secret Army Organization demolitionists heavily damaged the municipal hospital Friday, shattered the massive City Hall Friday night and burned private stores throughout the capital.

A big power dam to the east was reported wrecked.

Reporters saw six bodies carried out of the City Hall wreckage. Authorities reported 43 others were injured there.

Officials said some of the explosives had been planted days or weeks ago in anticipation of the fiery touchoffs that would lay Algeria waste before its abandonment by the die-hards and take over by Moslems.

The climactic secret army offensive against Moslem rule officially began Thursday midnight. Twenty-four hours later it had spread — with an incalculable toll — across the countryside.

By Friday midnight the grim and desperate pledge of the secret army to leave ruins for an independent Algeria appeared to be coming true.

Systematic Destruction

From Bone to the west came a new threat of scorched earth destruction as the secret army admitted it may not be possible to set up autonomous European enclaves as planned.

In such case, "even more than in Algiers — our means being superior — we will practice the systematic destruction, exercising the rule that the land should not be delivered intact to the enemy. We will apply this rule with a relentless vigor," said a secret army spokesman in a pirate broadcast.

At Sidi Bel Abbes, the Foreign Legion's historic home, six grade schools and a high school were burned.

In Algiers, fires raged throughout the city as steel helmeted French soldiers dug through the crumbled three stories of the City Hall for comrades who may still be buried in the basement.

The first big demolition of the terror squads' D-day blew up a big section of the 2,500-bed Mustapha Hospital. Curiously, there were no reported casualties in the hospital, but the place had to be evacuated.

Dam's Controls Blasted

Officials of the Algerian Gas & Electric Co. said the control installations of the Darguina Dam were blasted by secret army commands.

The secret army in its Thursday night announcement of the explosive offensive threatened to blow up all dams in Algeria.

The dam near Bougie, 100 miles east of Algiers, was a major supplier of power for Algiers. Officials said repairs would take to ten months.

The City Hall blast was one of the most spectacular terrorist actions of the secret army since it launched its desperate campaign to scorch the earth before the Moslem takeover of Algerian rule.

Grim police officials, standing ankle deep in shattered glass and debris, said the City Hall charges were hidden weeks before a company of the 9th Zouave Regiment moved in to guard the building.

The charges apparently were set off by someone who lit the fuses and then walked out of the building, situated on the waterfront.

Police feared similar charges are in place in other French administration buildings in Algiers.

Ford Plants Closing Down Due To Strike

M.M. (Mike) Cummins, Ford's labor relations director, said "We are getting a better understanding on where we are going."

Cummins told newsmen they could read in his statement a slight note of optimism but advised them to emphasize slight.

Earlier during an afternoon break, Gene Prato, chairman of the union's national Ford committee, said nothing had been accomplished at the morning session.

Work Quotas At Issue

The Walton Hills plant was one of the last to settle local grievances during Ford national negotiations on a new three-year contract with the UAW last fall. The union says work quotas on some jobs at the plant are too high and claims the company backed out of an agreement to ease them. The company says the quotas are consistent with those prevailing elsewhere.

Ford operates 16 passenger car assembly plants. Three already have closed, at Wixom and Dearborn, Mich., and Kansas City, Mo. The others worked through Friday.

Union Renews Strike Threat; Deadline Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting a strong plea from President Kennedy, flight engineers stood pat Friday on their refusal to arbitrate the key issue of their dispute with three major airlines — cockpit job rights.

The Flight Engineers International Association linked to the turnaround a renewed strike threat, with a deadline of sometime after 1:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time Saturday.

Stock Market Halts Decline With Big Gain

Powerful Advance After 4-Day Drop Comes Near Close

NEW YORK (AP) — Rallying near the close of trading, the stock market snapped a four-session string of losses Friday with a powerful advance.

The gain was the biggest since the May 29 recovery from the May 28 plunge, which was the worst since 1929.

The upward surge in heavy trading raised flagging spirits in Wall Street, which Thursday saw the market averages sink to their lowest levels in many months. The spurt ran counter to the usual doldrums on Fridays, when traders are reluctant to get out on a limb in advance of the weekend.

Half Of Loss Recouped

When the opening trading bell sounded, The Associated Press 60-stock average was at its lowest point since Nov. 2, 1960, and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was at its bottom level since Dec. 12, 1958.

Trading began with an advance on big blocks of shares—an indication that the funds and institutions were back in the market on a substantial scale. Gains melted into losses around mid-day as buying waned. Then another rally got under way and this time it carried through.

The AP average advanced 5.50 to 214.10 and the Dow Jones industrial climbed 15.18 to 578.18. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 1.56 to 55.89.

Court Orders Strike Halted

NEW YORK (AP)—The Justice Department, acting on the orders of President Kennedy, obtained a temporary federal court injunction Friday halting a 2½-month strike at Republic Aviation Corp. The strike halted production of the F105 jet fighter.

U.S. Dist. Judge Walter Bruchhausen in Brooklyn issued an order halting the strike until a court hearing next Wednesday. Republic then sent telegrams to some 9,000 striking employees telling them to report to work Monday.

An affidavit from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, read to Judge Bruchhausen, declared that the F105 is urgently needed by the Air Force now.

Creditors Ask Court Declare Estes Bankrupt

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Billie Sol Estes looked about 150 of his 564 creditors in their eyes Friday from the witness stand and told them under oath that he has no assets hidden in Swiss banks or anywhere else in the world.

Facing his creditors in U.S. District Court, Estes proposed a complicated plan for paying them off. Under it, some creditors would have had to accept 50 cents on a dollar and waive service charges and lawyers' fees.

The creditors rejected it and asked U.S. Dist. Judge R. E. Thomason to declare Estes an involuntary bankrupt. Thomason ordered a hearing for Friday, July 13, on the creditors' petition.

The possibility arose, however, that Estes may be forced into bankruptcy long before July 13 and possibly within a week.

John Cofer and John Dennison, both lawyers for Estes, arranged a meeting in Dallas next week—they did not set a date—with the creditors. The lawyers and creditors will try to work out a plan to avoid bankruptcy at the Dallas meeting.

Judge Thomason told Cofer and Dennison that if nothing comes out of the Dallas meeting to let him know right away and he will adjudicate bankruptcy.

J. F. Hulise of El Paso, chairman of a seven-man creditors' committee, said the creditors will go along with an acceptable plan to pay off the creditors, if Estes can present one.

"But we see no chance now," he said.

Estes filed a 50-page document with the court, showing that he owes $38,387,935.87 and claiming assets of $20,793,155.95. That is, if he sold all of his assets for what he estimates they are worth, he would still need $17,594,779.92 to pay off all his debts.

Hulise told Estes that he had failed to list as liabilities about $2 million in claims.

"This is merely an oversight," Estes said.

Revision Of Watered Ham Label Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department, the loser in a Supreme Court appeal, Friday modified its proposal for the labelling of watered hams.

Under the new regulation issued Friday, smoked hams containing up to 10 per cent added water would be labelled "ham—water added" instead of "imitation" as the department has proposed.

The action followed issuance of a temporary injunction by a federal district court restraining the department from requiring the "imitation" label on such ham and pork products.

Favoritism Shown Firm Bankrolling Estes, Inquiry Told

Company Aided GOP Farm Bill Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — House probes were told Friday that Commercial Solvents Corp. got favored treatment from a Republican Department of Agriculture in 1959 and in 1961 gave GOP leaders subrosa aid in their fight against the Democrats' farm bill.

The political ramifications marked sessions of the House subcommittee's hearing into the affairs of Billie Sol Estes, indicted Texas financier who was bankrolled by Commercial Solvents in extensive liquid fertilizer and grain storage operations.

Maynard C. Wheeler, Commercial Solvents president, described as preposterous the charge of favoritism raised by a subcommittee member, Rep. Ross Bass, D-Tenn.

The subcommittee counsel, James Naughton, sought to establish an anti-Democrat link between Commercial Solvents and top Republicans—including Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Naughton sought to do that by reading into the record letters he said were written by Martin Sorkin, identified as a $5,000-a-year Washington consultant for Commercial Solvents. Sorkin has been described by Bass as the company's chief lobbyist.

Naughton described the letters as ones sent to Wheeler by Sorkin, who was a top economic adviser to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson in the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

A letter dated Sept. 11, 1961, told Wheeler of being invited to a secret meeting with Republican congressional leaders for the purpose of developing a continued attack on the farm bill then pending in Congress.

Sorkin wrote that those attending this session included Goldwater, Rep. William Miller, a New York State congressman and national Republican chairman; and Rep. Bob Wilson of California, chairman of the House Republican Campaign Committee.

Sorkin wrote Wheeler that it was agreed it was not the responsibility of the Republican party to offer alternatives to the farm bill but to attack the administration whenever feasible.

In a Sept. 15 letter, Sorkin reported on a "private, off-the-record" meeting with Rockefeller to "explore the position the governor should take." Sorkin said it was agreed Rockefeller should use his influence with Republican Congress members to help defeat strict crop control legislation.

The Federal Reserve Board, using 1957 as the measuring point at 100, announced Friday that the output in mines, factories and utilities advanced one point during May to 118.

The rise in industrial production was expected to be welcomed even though the increase was smaller than in every post-recession month except last September and January, when the index fell.

The May increase was achieved despite a sharp decline in steel output, which was more than offset by widespread gains elsewhere.

Sorkin wrote that those attending this session included Goldwa-

Blasts Wreck Algiers City Hall, Hospital

Big Dam Reported Blown Up, Private Stores Set Ablaze

ALGIERS (AP)—Scorching the earth as they threatened to do, European Secret Army Organization demolitionists heavily damaged the municipal hospital Friday, shattered the massive City Hall Friday night and burned private stores throughout the capital.

A big power dam to the east was reported wrecked.

Reporters saw six bodies carried out of the City Hall wreckage. Authorities reported 43 others were injured there.

Officials said some of the explosives had been planted days or weeks ago in anticipation of the fiery touchoffs that would lay Algeria waste before its abandonment by the die-hards and take over by Moslems.

The climactic secret army offensive against Moslem rule officially began Thursday night. Twenty-four hours later it had spread — with an incalculable toll — across the countryside.

By Friday midnight the grim and desperate pledge of the secret army to leave ruins for an independent Algeria appeared to be coming true.

Systematic Destruction

From Bone to the west came a new threat of scorched earth destruction as the secret army admitted it may not be possible to set up autonomous European enclaves as planned.

In such case, "even more than in Algiers — our means being superior — we will practice the systematic destruction, exercising the rule that the land should not be delivered intact to the enemy. We will apply this rule with a relentless vigor," said a secret army spokesman in a pirate broadcast.

At Sidi Bel Abbes, the Foreign Legion's historic home, six grade schools and a high school were burned.

In Algiers, fires raged throughout the city as steel helmeted French soldiers dug through the crumbled three stories of the City Hall for comrades who may still be buried in the basement.

The first big demolition of the terror squads' D-day blew up a big section of the 2,500-bed Mustapha Hospital. Curiously, there were no reported casualties in the hospital, but the place had to be evacuated.

Dam's Controls Blasted

Officials of the Algerian Gas & Electric Co. said the control installations of the Darguina Dam were blasted by secret army commands.

The secret army in its Thursday night announcement of the explosive offensive threatened to blow up all dams in Algeria.

The dam near Bougie, 100 miles east of Algiers, was a major supplier of power for Algiers. Officials said repairs would take ten months.

The City Hall blast was one of the most spectacular terrorist actions of the secret army since it launched its desperate campaign to scorch the earth before the Moslem takeover of Algerian rule.

Grim police officials, standing ankle deep in shattered glass and debris, said the City Hall charges were hidden weeks before a company of the 9th Zouave Regiment moved in to guard the building.

The charges apparently were set off by someone who lit the fuses and then walked out of the building, situated on the waterfront.

Police feared similar charges are in place in other French administration buildings in Algiers.

Students Who Gave Up D.C. Trip To Aid Classmate Will Go After All, See JFK

GLEN LAKE, Mich. (AP)—The 33 graduating seniors of Glen Lake High School will receive a personal pat on the back from President Kennedy—provided they can find a way to get to Washington.

Kennedy invited the students to visit him at the White House as a tribute to the help they've given a cancer-stricken classmate. They had worked for six years to raise enough money for a trip to the nation's capital, but called it off to give financial aid to their ally friend.

Washington residents who heard of the students' generosity began pledging money for the trip. However, another $900 is needed to pay for transportation, said school Principal Harold E. Sweeney.

"We have pledged to date for $1,600 but we need $2,500 to make the trip," he said.

"We'll drive the students to Detroit in our school bus," Sweeney said, "but we'll have to take a needy might invite them to the train from there to Washington and back."

He said the graduates—21 boys and 12 girls—had washed cars, sold popcorn and candy, and worked at odd jobs since 1956 to pay for the scheduled trip. But a few months ago, Duane Richardson, 17, star of the school's basketball team, learned he had cancer in his right shoulder.

His classmates decided to turn over their earnings over to Duane's family to help foot bills for surgery and isotope treatments. When newspapers reported this, offers of money came from Washington.

Radio station WWDC said it would send $700 to the graduating class, and others in Washington offered lodging and food. Thursday night, Sweeney told the graduates that they would be able to make the trip.

Sweeney revealed another act of student generosity. The graduates, he said, had raised nearly $2,500 in the past six years, and, after voting $700 for Duane's cancer treatments, turned the rest of the money over to the school for athletic activities and a year book.

Soviet May Be Braking China Through India

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Friday night recent developments have convinced him the Soviet Union is trying to put a brake on Communist China by building India's military power.

The Democratic whip said in a recorded radio broadcast his view was based on information from a government official recently returned from India.

"At this very moment," he said, "the Soviets are engaged in bringing heavy artillery and munitions and supplies to the Indian forces on the Chinese Communist border" and using Soviet transportation equipment to do it.

He continued: "Here is the supposed ally—China the ally of the Soviet Union—and yet the Soviet Union is right now engaged in helicopter operations, massive airlift of machine guns, heavy artillery, light artillery and other important military equipment for the Indian armed forces that are resisting the aggression of Chinese Communist forces on the Indian border."

"Now you add that to what is developing here in Laos and where Khrushchev only recently sent a very cordial note to President Kennedy. All of this tells me that the Soviet Union looks with deep concern, great concern, upon the aggression of the Chinese Communists and is watching very carefully and trying to put a brake on it."

Grandson, 10, To Receive Duke Fortune When 21

BRUNSON, S.C. (AP)—A gangling fifth-grader who will receive at least $30 million when he's 21 is being taught that knowledge, not money, comes first, says his beautiful aunt.

Mrs. Hugh Lightsey said her dead sister's 10-year-old son was forewarned about his inheritance of the bulk of the estate of Nanaline H. Duke, his grandmother.

Under the will, filed for probate Thursday in Surrogate Court in New York, Walker P. (Skipper) Inman Jr. will receive $30 million of his grandmother's $40 million estate when he's 21.

Skipper and his half-sister, Susan, a University of South Carolina junior, have lived with the Lightseys since the death of their parents. The father left a sizable estate upon his death in 1953, as did Mrs. Inman who died in 1957 of a heart condition.

"After Skipper's grandmother died," said Mrs. Lightsey who is in her early 30s, "we let him know that he would be wealthy someday. I have always taught him that the love of knowledge is first in life, not money. He loved his grandmother."

Skipper, who is tall with brown hair and eyes and husky for 10, cannot conceive of the amount of money involved, said Mrs. Lightsey.

His aunt said that Skipper is a bright boy who did well in his fourth-grade classes at the Brunson Elementary School. He enjoys making rockets and the like in his basement.

Officers Probe Triple Shooting

MCCONNELLSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A 38-year-old construction worker shot his wife and sister-in-law and then turned a .22 calibre rifle on himself early Friday, Police Chief Merrill Seville reported.

Seville said investigation of the 2 a. m. shooting was being conducted on the theory of attempted murder and suicide.

He added that the full story may not be known for several days because the alleged assailant, Edwin Merrell, is in critical condition with gunshot wounds of the chest and abdomen.

Merrell's sister-in-law, Mrs. Kathleen Mellott, 18, also was reported in critical condition.

Both underwent emergency surgery at Chambersburg Hospital within a few hours of the shooting. Merrell's wife, Joy, 31, mother of their three children, was listed in satisfactory condition at the medical center here with a bullet wound of the knee.

Seville quoted Mrs. Merrell as saying her husband was waiting in the street, armed with the rifle, when she and her sister, Mrs. Mellott, returned home from a bowling banquet.

Seville said an argument ensued and the shooting began. At least six shots were fired, it was indicated.

Mansfield And Goldwater Debate Domestic Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., defended the Kennedy administration Friday against antibusiness charges, while Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., accused it of undermining confidence.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, said "the news that a number of business leaders and publicists are seriously concerned over the administration's domestic policies is comparable in novelty to news that former President Harry S. Truman supports the Democratic party."

"Fundamentally," he told the Senate, "it appears they are disappointed that President Kennedy has not embraced a profoundly conservative economic position but has remained a moderate, at best, with doctrinaire posturing."

"If these 'disappointed' sources weren't already committed to an economic view not shared by the President, nor by the majority of Americans, they would have a difficult time finding anything remotely resembling an antibusiness attitude in the president's domestic program."

Goldwater said the administration is "still offering us the same old remedies that were tried in the 1930s and which failed to correct the economic problems of that time."

"Actually," he told the Senate, "it took World War II to bring us out of the great depression. The New Deal's answers were unequal to the task."

U. Md. Regents Ask $16 Million In Construction

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The University of Maryland Board of Regents approved Friday a $16.6 million construction program for the coming fiscal year.

The approved request, largest in history for construction, includes $9.7 million for campus expansion here, another $6.7 million at the Baltimore branch and $198,800 at Maryland State College in Prince George's County.

The largest single expenditure approved was a $6 million request to replace the 139-year-old outpatient building at University Hospital in Baltimore.

In presenting the requests, Dr. Thomas B. Symonds, chairman of the regents' building committee, pointed out that enrollment at the university increased by 15 per cent this year.

Largest single item in the expenditure for the College Park campus is $2.3 million for an arts and sciences classroom and auditorium building on the home campus. Another $1.6 million was approved for a new education building at College Park. The program also provides more than $1 million for purchase of 14 acres of government land located on the campus here.

The proposed expenditures now must be approved by the State Planning Board, the General Assembly and Gov. Tawes.

Foreign Legion To Leave "Home"

PARIS (AP)—The battle-proud French Foreign Legion is moving out — with kept headgear set squarely and rifles ready — to scattered posts ranging from French Guiana to the Indian Ocean island of Madagascar.

After Algerian independence, the Legion will leave its historic home at Sidi Bel Abbes.

A government spokesman said Friday Legion headquarters will be moved from Sidi Bel Abbes to a camp in southern France, near Marseille.

There the 1st Infantry Regiment, in the best Legion tradition, will accept — with few questions asked — recruits from all corners of the world. They will train on Corsica's beaches and mountains and keep alive the Legion's fighting tradition under the French Tricolor from the Crimea to Dien Bien Phu.

Burns Is Maryland's New Poet Laureate

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Vincent Godfrey Burns — well known author, poet and lecturer — was named by Gov. Tawes Friday as poet laureate of Maryland.

He succeeds Maria Briscoe Croker of Baltimore, who died recently. Mrs. Croker was the state's first poet laureate under an act passed by the General Assembly in 1959.

Burns, 68, resides with his wife and two sons at Epping Forest near Annapolis.

Three Children, "Daddy" Sought

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore police broadcast a 19-state alarm Friday for three children who disappeared from a school with a man who said he was their father.

The children were Jonathan Anthony Sisson, Jr., 12, April Ann Sisson, 7, and Dale Stanton Sisson, 9.

The mother, Mrs. Shirley Byrne of Baltimore, told police that her father-in-law, Harry Earl Byrne, went to P. S. 211 Thursday to get the children.

A man whom Jonathan called "Daddy" told Byrne he would see that the children got home safely. Mrs. Byrne called police when her father-in-law told her of the incident.

She said her former husband, Lt. Cmdr. Jonathan Sisson of the U. S. Navy stationed in Norway, had signed over custody of the children to her in Baltimore three years ago. But, she said, since then Sisson started legal action in Nevada to get custody of the children.

Patrolman James Corcoran said he received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Sisson. The caller said he had a court order giving him custody and that he intended to take the children to Norway.

Hooded Bandit Robs Bank At Hyattsville

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP)—A man wearing a cloth hood with eye-holes poked in it held up a branch bank Friday and fled with $6,524.

Scene of the holdup was the Riggs Road branch of the Citizens Bank of Maryland.

Entering the building about 40 minutes after the 8 a. m. opening time, the man pointed a pistol at two women tellers and ordered them to lie down on the floor. He then vaulted a swinging door and scooped the money in bills, from two drawers.

The women, Mrs. Myrtle J. Wilson, 45, and Mrs. Mureen L. Bibb, 21, were the only employees in the bank and there were no customers at the time.

Australia Purchases $4 Million U.N. Bonds

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia helped the United Nations out of a temporary financial difficulty Friday by bringing a check for $4 million for U.N. bonds.

U.N. officials said last week that unless money from bond sales and other sources came in, the organization would have to borrow $2 to $3 million to pay for expenses in the Congo, Middle East and normal operating costs.

But it was announced that Menzies presented Acting Secretary-General U Thant with a check for $4 million in bonds prior to a luncheon given in Menzies' honor by Thant.

Lawyer Classes Gilbert's Crime As Fiscal At Most

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Brazilian lawyer for Edward M. Gilbert said Friday the New York financier believes his unauthorized withdrawal of $2 million from his U.S. firm can only be classified as a fiscal crime. The lawyer said Gilbert may have committed no crime at all.

Attorney Jorge Chaluppe Sobrinho, who represents two major U.S. fugitives in Brazil, said he would seek a preventive writ of habeas corpus in the Brazilian Supreme Court to head off any possibility of arrest or deportation.

Gilbert flew to extradition-proof Brazil from New York on Wednesday after admitting he withdrew the funds from his firm without authorization.

"If Gilbert, as president of the corporation, only withdrew the value of his stock and the profit relative to which he has a right, he has committed no crime at all," Chaluppe said.

"But I will only be able to determine this later after I have had a better chance to examine his documents. According to Gilbert, his crime, under American laws, at most could only be classified as fiscal."

The U.S. Embassy said it had no instructions from Washington in connection with Gilbert.

A Brazilian police spokesman said: "American authorities have made no charges against Edward Gilbert."

But Chaluppe said Gilbert is remaining in hiding to avoid public recognition. Gilbert has been staying at the home of a friend, Chaluppe said. He declined to identify the friend.

Chaluppe said Gilbert planned to fly Friday to Sao Paulo, the Brazilian business and industrial center about 200 miles from here, to make arrangements with the president of a New York bank to handle his interests in New York. Chaluppe refused to identify the banker but said he was a close friend of Gilbert.

Three Children, "Daddy" Sought

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore police broadcast a 19-state alarm Friday for three children who disappeared from a school with a man who said he was their father.

The children were Jonathan Anthony Sisson, Jr., 12, April Ann Sisson, 7, and Dale Stanton Sisson, 9.

The mother, Mrs. Shirley Byrne of Baltimore, told police that her father-in-law, Harry Earl Byrne, went to P. S. 211 Thursday to get the children.

A man whom Jonathan called "Daddy" told Byrne he would see that the children got home safely.

Mrs. Byrne called police when her father-in-law told her of the incident.

She said her former husband, Lt. Cmdr. Jonathan Sisson of the U. S. Navy stationed in Norway, had signed over custody of the children to her in Baltimore three years ago. But, she said, since then Sisson started legal action in Nevada to get custody of the children.

Patrolman James Corcoran said he received a telephone call from a man who identified himself as Sisson. The caller said he had a court order giving him custody and that he intended to take the children to Norway.

Hooded Bandit Robs Bank At Hyattsville

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP)—A man wearing a cloth hood with eye-holes poked in it held up a branch bank Friday and fled with $6,524.

Scene of the holdup was the Riggs Road branch of the Citizens Bank of Maryland.

Entering the building about 40 minutes after the 8 a. m. opening time, the man pointed a pistol at two women tellers and ordered them to lie down on the floor.

He then vaulted a swinging door and scooped the money in bills, from two drawers.

The women, Mrs. Myrtle L. Wilson, 45, and Mrs. Mureen L. Bibb, 21, were the only employees in the bank and there were no customers at the time.

Australia Purchases $4 Million U.N. Bonds

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies of Australia helped the United Nations out of a temporary financial difficulty Friday by bringing a check for $4 million for U.N. bonds.

U.N. officials said last week that unless money from bond sales and other sources came in, the organization would have to borrow $2 to $3 million to pay for expenses in the Congo, Middle East and normal operating costs.

But it was announced that Menzies presented Acting Secretary-General U Thant with a check for $4 million in bonds prior to a luncheon given in Menzies' honor by Thant.

Grandson, 10, To Receive Duke Fortune When 21

BRUNSON, S.C. (AP)—A gangling fifth-grader who will receive at least $30 million when he's 21 is being taught that knowledge, not money, comes first, says his beautiful aunt.

Mrs. Hugh Lightsey said her dead sister's 10-year-old son was forewarned about his inheritance of the bulk of the estate of Nana-line H. Duke, his grandmother.

Under the will, filed for probate Thursday in Surrogate Court in New York, Walker P. (Skipper) Inman Jr. will receive $30 million of his grandmother's $40 million estate when he's 21.

Skipper and his half-sister, Susan, a University of South Carolina junior, have lived with the Lightseys since the death of their parents. The father left a sizable estate upon his death in 1955, as did Mrs. Inman who died in 1957 of a heart condition.

"After Skipper's grandmother died," said Mrs. Lightsey who is in her early 30s, "we let him know that he would be wealthy someday. I have always taught him that the love of knowledge is first in life, not money. He loved his grandmother."

Skipper, who is tall with brown hair and eyes and husky for 10, cannot conceive of the amount of money involved, said Mrs. Lightsey.

His aunt said that Skipper is a bright boy who did well in his fourth-grade classes at the Brunson Elementary School. He enjoys making rockets and the like in his basement.

S&L Creditors Hear Grim News

BALTIMORE (AP)—A federal receiver for Mutual Security Savings and Loan Association of Baltimore had grim news Friday for some 100 persons attending a creditors meeting.

Fenton L. Martin, a receiver, said nearly $2 million was unaccounted for on the incomplete books of the firm, which was placed in federal bankruptcy last February.

Martin said some of the money, belonging to about 7,000 depositors, apparently went to officers.

Officers Probe Triple Shooting

MCCONNELLSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A 38-year-old construction worker shot his wife and sister-in-law and then turned a 22 calibre rifle on himself early Friday, Police Chief Merrill Seville reported.

Seville said investigation of the 2 a. m. shooting was being conducted on the theory of attempted murder and suicide.

He added that the full story may not be known for several days because the alleged assailant, Edwin Merrell, is in critical condition with gunshot wounds of the chest and abdomen.

Merrell's sister-in-law, Mrs. Kathleen Mellott, 18, also was reported in critical condition.

Both underwent emergency surgery at Chambersburg Hospital within a few hours of the shooting.

Merrell's wife, Joy, 31, mother of their three children, was listed in satisfactory condition at the medical center here with a bullet wound of the knee.

Seville quoted Mrs. Merrell as saying her husband was waiting in the street, armed with the rifle, when she and her sister, Mrs. Mellott, returned home from a bowling banquet.

Seville said an argument ensued and the shooting began. At least six shots were fired, it was indicated.

Mansfield And Goldwater Debate Domestic Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., defended the Kennedy administration Friday against antibusiness charges, while Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., accused it of undermining confidence.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, said "the news that a number of business leaders and publicists are 'seriously concerned' over the administration's domestic policies is comparable in novelty to news that former President Harry S. Truman supports the Democratic party."

"Fundamentally," he told the Senate, "it appears they are disappointed that President Kennedy has not embraced a profoundly conservative economic position but has remained a moderate, a progressive, concerned more with reviving a flagging economy than with doctrinaire posturing."

"If these 'disappointed' sources weren't already committed to an economic view not shared by the President, nor by the majority of Americans, they would have a difficult time finding anything remotely resembling an antibusiness attitude in the president's domestic program," Mansfield added.

Goldwater said the administration is "still offering us the same old remedies that were tried in the 1930s and which failed to correct the economic problems of that time."

"Actually," he told the Senate, "it took World War II to bring us out of the great depression. The New Deal's answers were unequal to the task."

Husband Ordered Held In Wife's Death

WASHINGTON (AP)—A coroner's jury Friday ordered William Howard Payne held for grand jury action in the death of his wife, Lorena.

Mrs. Payne, 52, died Tuesday night in a hospital where she had been under treatment since June 6. An autopsy disclosed she had suffered a cut of the liver and an injury to the pancreas.

Payne, also 52, was arraigned Thursday on a charge of second-degree murder. He was freed unconditionally on a $5,000 bond.

U. Md. Regents Ask $16 Million In Construction

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The University of Maryland Board of Regents approved Friday a $16.6 million construction program for the coming fiscal year.

The approved request, largest in history for construction, includes $9.7 million for campus expansion here, another $6.7 million at the Baltimore branch and $198,800 at Maryland State College in Princess Anne.

The largest single expenditure approved was a $6 million request to replace the 139-year-old outpatient building at University Hospital in Baltimore.

In presenting the requests, Dr. Thomas B. Symonds, chairman of the regents' building committee, pointed out that enrollment at the university increased by 15 per cent this year.

Largest single item in the expenditure for the College Park campus is $2.3 million for an arts and sciences classroom and auditorium building on the home campus. Another $1.6 million was approved for a new education building at College Park. The program also provides more than $1 million for purchase of 14 acres of government land located on the campus here.

The proposed expenditures now must be approved by the State Planning Board, the General Assembly and Gov. Tawes.

Foreign Legion To Leave "Home"

PARIS (AP)—The battle-proud French Foreign Legion is moving out — with kept headgear, square and rifles ready — to scattered posts ranging from French Guiana to the Indian Ocean island of Madagascar.

After Algerian independence, the Legion will leave its historic home at Sidi bel Abbas.

A government spokesman said Friday Legion headquarters will be moved from Sidi bel Abbas to a camp in southern France, near Marseille.

There the 1st Infantry Regiment, in the best Legion tradition, will accept — with few questions asked — recruits from all corners of the world. They will train on Corsica's beaches and mountains and keep alive the Legion's fighting tradition under the French Tricolor from the Crimea to Dien Bien Phu.

Burns Is Maryland's New Poet Laureate

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Vincent Godfrey Burns — well known author, poet and lecturer — was named by Gov. Tawes Friday as poet laureate of Maryland.

He succeeds Maria Briscoe Croker of Baltimore, who died recently. Mrs. Croker was the state's first poet laureate under an act passed by the General Assembly in 1959.

Burns, 68, resides with his wife and two sons at Epping Forest near Annapolis.

Educators Praise Community College

Two officials of the U. S. Office of Education have expressed amazement at the progress of Allegany Community College, pointing out some sort of national record must have been set in getting the institution into operation in the few weeks between last June and September.

The officials, Dr. S. V. Martorana and Dr. John H. Russell, came here to consult with Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, and members of the faculty regarding problems that may have arisen during the past term, and on future development of the institution.

The college was instituted last June by an appropriation of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, and the first classes were held September 25 following approval of the institution as a junior college by the County Board of Education and the state.

Dr. Russell said he would like to have come here while classes were in operation, but stated he was impressed by the building

Board Approves Payment Of College Deficit

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday approved payment of an estimated deficit of $7,787.58 for the Allegany Community College.

A deficit represented the expense of operating the college plant on Frederick Street and the Board of Trustees and Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, college president, said that there was no way of knowing when the school opened last September what this cost would be.

Commissioner John J. Rowan commended Dr. Zimmer and his staff for the excellent work in operating the college during the first year of its existence. He pointed out that when the county commissioners agreed to provide $30,000 last year to help start the school they realized they had an obligation to the students and citizens to see that the college was run effectively.

Commissioner John Tucker Mason also said that he has been gratified with the manner in which the college has been operated and he will support its continuation in the community.

"It has been a job well done," Mason added.

Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon is on vacation and was not present at the meeting.

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of the Allegany County Board of Education, which is also the Board of Trustees of the college, said that the support of the county commissioners is appreciated.

Mrs. George McA. Young of the trustees said that the first year has been an experimental one and that the operation of the college for the next school term should follow within the budget.

Dr. Zimmer said that the number of students enrolled was not quite as large as had been anticipated as the opening date was undetermined for some time. This resulted in some prospective students going elsewhere. This cut down on the state matching funds which would have been available.

T. Donald Shires, another trustee, said that the starting time for the school also curtailed the possible number of students enrolling.

The commissioners said they would probably pay the deficit out of the contingent fund and Commissioner Rowan said that Commissioner Mason, who handles the county's financial matters, would look into this phase of the situation.

Also attending the meeting were Mrs. Richard Winer, a member of the board, and Roy S. Weed, business manager and faculty member at the college.

Sewage Topic Of Complaints

A copy of a letter from the Allegany County Health Department to the LaVale Sanitary Commission concerning complaints on a sewage situation in the Campground Road area was received today by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Gaylord Brooks, sanitarian with the Health Department, listed in the letter some of the data concerning the situation and also a temporary plan for a solution.

Brooks said that there are 70 to 80 homes affected, some have septic tanks, some have none, sewage is dumped into Braddock Run and other septic tanks are overflowing. The high waters in Braddock Run at times has caused some trouble and real estate developers have dumped fill dirt in the stream area on occasion.

The sanitarian said that pending the completion of a sewage program in LaVale a public sewer line which would tie in with a trunk sewer line later on would provide temporary relief.

Swimming Pool Opinions Sought By LaVale Group

Residents of the LaVale area, White will show drawings of the proposed location of the pool, in the desirability of constructing a swimming pool at LaVale Park at a public meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. at the LaVale Fire Hall.

The meeting is being sponsored by the LaVale Civic Improvement Association, and spokesmen said a large attendance is desirable in order that a true cross-section of opinion may be obtained.

The park is being developed by the LaVale Lions Foundation and the principal speaker will be Harry White, president of the foundation.

Bids Are Sought For Roadside Mower

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday ordered an advertisement for bids on a roadside mower for use by the Roads Department.

Commissioner John T. Mason said that the specifications should state that the proper tires for the mower be included. Commissioner John J. Rowan said that the specifications call for Kelly-Springfield Company tires. The firm has always been co-operative in seeing that the most suitable tires are used on county vehicles, he added.

The bids on the mower will be opened June 29 and delivery of the mower must be made within ten days.

Dave Tymus, playing first base in 13 Big Ten games for Wisconsin this spring, handled 110 chances without making an error.

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: This problem must bother many teenagers, both girls and boys. I hope you won't think it is too dumb to answer.

I am going to a big dance soon and I know I will receive a corsage. It will be my first one. Who is supposed to pin it on? My mother says the fellow is supposed to have the honor. He says she is wrong. He says when he was 17 he didn't have money for corsages but even if he had he would have dropped dead if a girl had asked him to pin it on her dress.

I think my father is right because my dress is strapless and the only place for a corsage is in the middle in front. Please help me.

—WORRIED IN ADVANCE

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is your opinion of a blind date? Our daughter is almost 20 and she flatly refuses to go out with a young man unless she has met him.

I say she is cheating herself out of many a good time. She agrees with me, but has pointed out that she has probably saved herself from many a boring evening.

I know several people who are happily married and they met on a blind date. Would you please deal with this topic in your column? I don't think anyone has ever written about it before.

—OPPOSITE SIDES

DEAR OPPOSITE: Blind dates are for those who have an adventurous spirit. Young people today, however, seem less willing to take the gamble.

When I was 19 (Pike's Peak was only a pimple, of course) a blind date was considered great sport. Today both lads and lassies want a preview before they decide to invest an evening with someone who might be—perish the thought—too short or too tall!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a widow who was terribly lonely. Several months ago I met a man who was lonely, too. He lost his wife about six years ago. We see each other about three nights a week. He has asked me to marry him and I need your advice.

This man owns a small business and lives well. My husband left me some money but I enjoy working and I make a fair salary. I don't need a man to support me but I do need companionship.

This gentleman has two married daughters who milk him for every last dollar. Their husbands do fairly well but apparently they are not satisfied. Their father has bought them fur coats, furniture, even jewelry.

He has told me that if we marry his daughters come first and I can't count on him for anything but grocery money. (He would move into my home.)

I do enjoy his company and he is not pressing for marriage. What do you say?

—LONESOME LADY

DEAR LONESOME LADY: This man may be a pleasant companion but I think he'd make a poor husband.

Be grateful that he was honest enough to level with you. Some women don't learn that their stepchildren come first until after they marry the man. Then it's too late.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Test Yourself With This Beauty Quiz

How is your acumen in grooming? Can you separate beauty facts from fallacies? Sharpen your pencil and your wits and find out. Some of these statements are true, some are false. You'll find the answers at the end of the column.

1. Bangs are verboten on those with big noses.
2. Bright bold colors make mouse-blondes look even mossier.
3. Bananas are fattening.
4. Seamless stockings in light shades are best for filling out and flattering thin legs.
5. Black is always a safe bet for slenderizing heavy figures.
6. Tall girls look shorter in two-piece costumes.
7. Too much brushing encourages baldness.

Now for a common-sense inspection of the answers:

1. False. It's the flat cap of hair with a center part that tends to enlarge a prominent nose. A fall of bangs, jutting out from the forehead, will offset an outside nose.

2. True. The indefinite blonde with fair skin pales out next to strong colors, and looks just as faded in weak shades. Her best colors, in true or medium tones, are black, white, orange-red, rose, rust, lemon, gold, blue, green and all pastels.

3. False. The banana should be the dieter's delight, only 88 calories in the medium size. To appease both appetite and sweet tooth, there's no better (nor more nutrition-rich) choice than a banana for dessert or between-meal snacking.

4. True. It's the heavy leg that wants the slimming effect of dark hose with dark seams.

5. True AND false. Black is subduing but, styled incorrectly for the full figure, worn too tight and form-fitting, it can be outrageously frank in outlining the flaws of a broad silhouette. Very heavy women would do better to select shades just slightly darker than medium, in colors keyed to their types.

6. True. Two-piece outfits break up that long line, as will two-piece effects like a lowered waistline, tunic or peplum, pockets or pleats in the skirt.

7. False. It's pulling the hair that promotes baldness. Brushing should always be a slow and gentle process, just

On Religious Insight

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who has a faith of his own can understand other religions much better than a man who has none, says Geoffrey Parrinder in a new book, "Worship in the World's Religions," published by Association Press. He writes: "An atheist, who looks upon all religions as superstitions, cannot hope to enter into the spirit of other faiths as can a man of religion."

Maybe Walt and Jerry don't realize the paradox in this scene. They're simply leaning on the fence while their youngsters enjoy the new sliding board in Walt's backyard.

But fences once implied enmity... fear... selfishness. They are first cousins to the walls the ancients built around their cities.

Centuries of Christian influence have implanted a different spirit in men's hearts. A fence today can add interest and beauty to neighbors' gardens while keeping Walt and Jerry's kids from running across the flower beds.

There are countless evidences of Christian influence in our community today. The Church has elevated human ideals. Faithful worship and spiritual growth bring us closer to those ideals.

On Religious Insight

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who has a faith of his own can understand other religions much better than a man who has none, says Geoffrey Parrinder in a new book, "Worship in the World's Religions," published by Association Press. He writes: An atheist, who looks upon all religions as superstitions, cannot hope to enter into the spirit of other faiths as can a man of religion.

NEIGHBORS AND FENCES

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Maybe Walt and Jerry don't realize the paradox in this scene. They're simply leaning on the fence while their youngsters enjoy the new sliding board in Walt's backyard.

But fences once implied enmity... fear... selfishness. They are first cousins to the walls the ancients built around their cities.

Centuries of Christian influence have implanted a different spirit in men's hearts. A fence today can add interest and beauty to neighbors' gardens while keeping Walt and Jerry's kids from running across the flower beds.

There are countless evidences of Christian influence in our community today. The Church has elevated human ideals. Faithful worship and spiritual growth bring us closer to those ideals.

Baptist Schools Urged

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Southern Baptists should establish and maintain day schools on both the elementary and secondary levels, a California Baptist educator, L. R. Simmons of Riverside, said here.

"If we are to conserve the leadership potential of our youth," he said, "then Christian education for grade and high school ages becomes even more important than such training during college years."

Another Scheme That Won't Work

A tacit agreement existed between East and West to accept the Berlin status quo for the present and let the tension die down. Now Khrushchev has suddenly broken that agreement. He complains of "subversive" and "fascist" and "provocative" activities by West Berliners and says Russia will not tolerate them.

He had thought that the Berlin wall would solve the problem of the escape of East Germans. It hasn't. It has aroused increasing resentment in West Berlin, too. West Berlin police have even shot at Vopos cops who fired into West Berlin. All this Khrushchev finds intolerable. He demands anew the removal of Western occupation forces from West Berlin.

He would find that that didn't work any more than the wall did. West Berlin would remain as a symbol of freedom and prosperity, an oasis surrounded by a Communist desert. Nothing short of destroying West Berlin as Rome destroyed Carthage would solve Khrushchev's problem.

The West would be untrue to all that it stands for if it allowed that. That is why, until some better solution is in sight, the forces of Western civilization must remain to defend West Berlin.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Curse Of Keynes

To be told, at this late date, that we shall return to the Keynesian concept of planned deficit spending and to tax cutting without balancing the budget, is discouraging because one is expected to learn by experience and experience is against any such program. President Kennedy has heretofore not given the impression that he favored deficit financing.

It is unfortunate that President Kennedy in his Yale speech gave the country this dose of Milton. We do not need to have our nerves quieted; we need to be stimulated so that we can move forward. And the economy of this country cannot move forward unless drastic steps are taken in specific directions:

1. Government spending needs to be cut to the bone, because there is no honest money available for wasteful expenditures;
 2. Foreign aid must be cut to the bone because we are running out of funds to aid countries which do not need aid and do not know how to use our aid;
 3. Taxes must be cut immediately both for corporations and individuals to stimulate economic activity and to restore a greater respect for the payment of taxes; postponement to April 1964 will not help much now;
 4. A diligent search must be made for hidden American money and for tax evaded possessions abroad. The thief who evades taxes is as much a thief as one who steals a purse;
 5. If a ceiling is put on prices, it must be put on wages; otherwise industry will become obsolescent;
 6. GATT cannot be permitted to control the American tariff which must be free to function as necessary to protect American industry and the jobs of American workers from unfair competition in the American market. If this is not done, a "Buy American" campaign will progress among our people which would hamper the Administration in its foreign negotiations;
 7. We cannot afford to go on playing tidilywinks with Soviet Russia or with any other country which seeks to destroy us. Our weapons must be sharp and swift.
- Action along these lines will restore confidence. Inaction makes for confusion and confusion adds to fear. The President's economic advisers may know economics but not the psychology of the American people. The current recession is psychological and must be treated that way.

In his Yale speech, President Kennedy sought to restore confidence but he spoke to the Yale faculty not to the country and the Yale faculty, while undoubtedly erudite, is not enough of an audience to matter. For instance, the President treats the loss of confidence, which sent the stock market tumbling, as due to myth—the perpetuation of myths. He said:

"In recent months many have come to feel as I do that the dialogue between the parties—between business and government—between the Government and the public—is clogged by illusion and platitudes and fails to reflect the true realities of contemporary American society."

He also said:
"Mythology distracts us everywhere—in government as in business, in politics as in economics, in foreign affairs as in domestic affairs."

But that is not quite the whole story. Money rushes toward profits and runs away from losses. That is the nature of the critter. There is no myth about this. To restore confidence, the President needs to assure those who work at the mechanism called money that they will not be harassed, that they will have a fair chance to do their jobs, to earn a profit, and to rebuild their plants and equipment. Those assurances do not appear in the President's speech in clear-cut, clarion tones, although a sympathetic person can say that that is what he understands the President means.

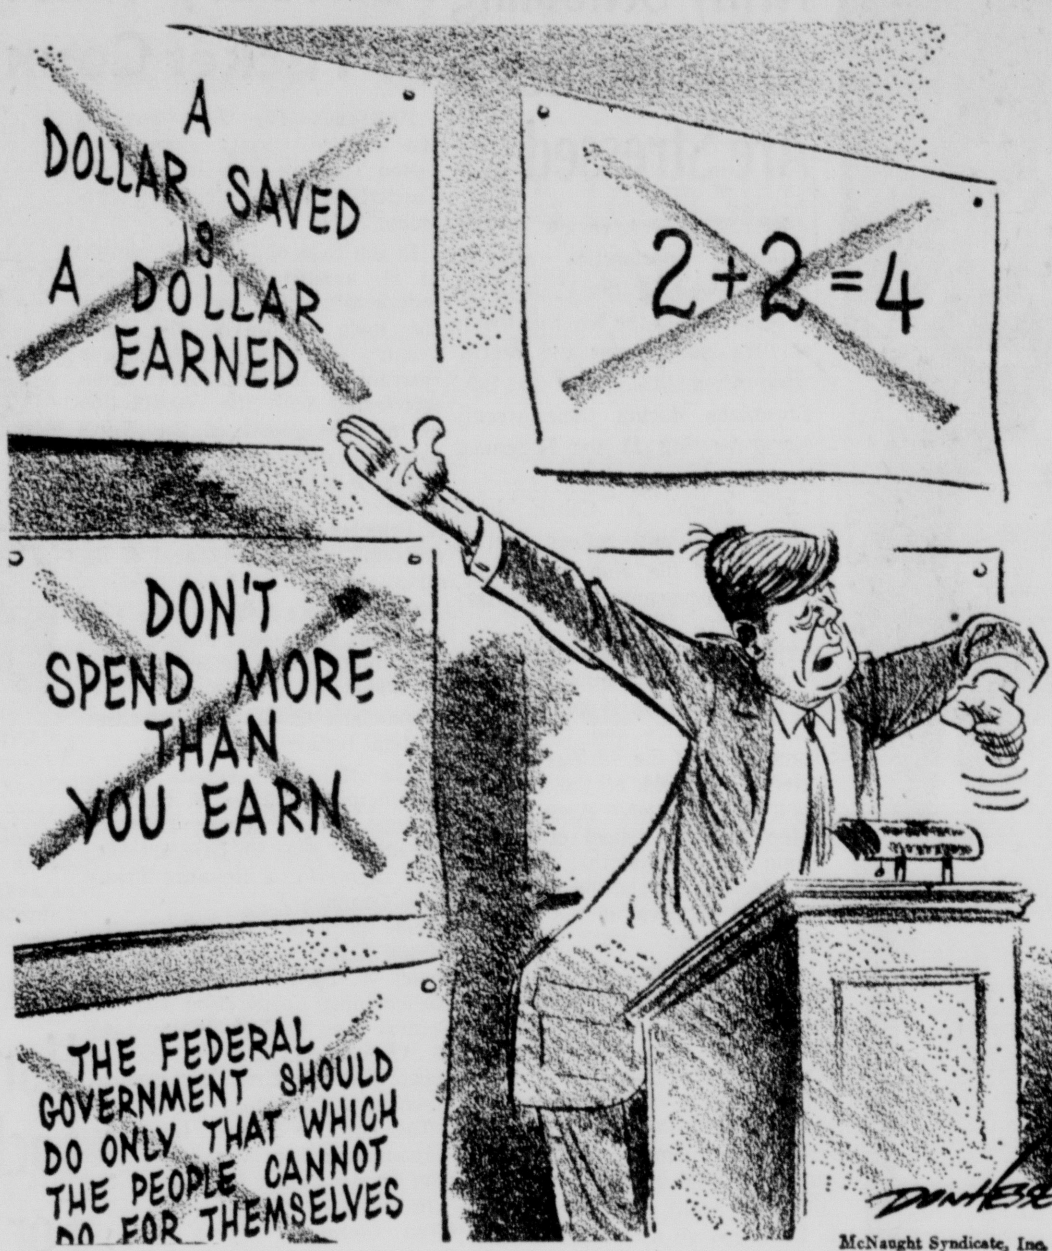

But the sympathetic person does not count as much as the unsympathetic person, particularly the frightened person who lost money in the stock market and still does not understand why.

There can be no question but that President Kennedy has come to the Presidency at a very hard time. All the mistakes of his predecessors have fallen into his lap. Those are the fortunes of politics. He faces a tough age and out of it he will emerge either a hero or a frightened man. The choice is his.

The President is entitled to support in any effort to save our currency, to make it possible to renew plant and equipment and to achieve full employment. But his program needs to be understood. American businessmen prefer to support their President rather than to oppose him.

'Let's Do Away With The Old Cliches'

Kennedy Must Fix Economy Or Lose In 1964

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — John F. Kennedy could still make a great President. Only a professional partisan would wish him to fail. Yet, if Mr. Kennedy fails in the present crisis, the country's economy will fail, too. He has a chance to save it from a fate worse than the nation encountered in the 1930s. But he is floundering. He is surrounded by inexperienced though well-meaning advisers. The outlook, therefore, is not good, and the sooner the President learns how to reverse his course and move forward, the quicker the whole situation will improve.

What can the President do that he is not now doing?

First, it is essential that all luxury spending by the government — all so-called "welfare" items, for example, that are normally attractive from a political viewpoint — be postponed and expenditures confined to absolute necessities.

Second, it is essential that all spending in the foreign field that is not absolutely necessary in carrying on the cold war be deferred. This will help materially to solve the problem of cutting down the flow of American gold to foreign countries, which is jeopardizing the future value of the dollar. And it is time for the prosperous nations of Western Europe to do more to help on the economic side in the cold war.

Third, it is essential that the confusion about taxes be cleared up at once. An "across-the-board" cut in taxes with increases in other rates to offset losses in revenue, as the President proposed the other day, is a mistake. The complexity of the subject means a delay in the enactment of selected tax changes that are really imperative and demand immediate attention — not next year but right now.

Fourth, much of the so-called "tax reform" program, involving changes in long-accustomed ways of doing business and conducting personal spending, should be postponed at least until recovery is here. To the cry that "The Treasury needs the money," the answer can be given that a huge increase in revenues from both individuals and corporations will come quickly as a prosperous economy, with full employment, emerges. Hence, this is not the time to reconstruct the whole system of taxation, even though there are certain inequities which need sooner or later to be corrected.

Fifth, it is essential that the American economy be made ready at once to compete in world markets. This means for at least a year or two a self-imposed restraint by labor on any substantial increases in industry's wage costs. It means, also, that American industry be given at once an incentive to buy new machinery and equipment, and that the rules of taxation involving what are known as "depreciation reserves" be freed from all of the discouraging restrictions that make it impossible to plan over the next five years for the investment of corporate funds in the modernization of plant. The "investment credit" of 8 per cent, which the administration has proposed, is grossly inadequate and narrow in its application.

Sixth, it is essential that the President be surrounded by more-experienced advisers. He should select a council of at least ten of the most successful businessmen in the country to sit with him regularly and advise him on all matters that affect the economy. They need not all be "moderates" or hand-picked friends of the administration. Some of the administration's most vehement critics should be included so they will have a chance to argue directly with the President. That's the way to get at the truth about what's going on in the national economy.

If the President wishes to have a separate council of ten labor leaders, or a separate council of small businessmen, or any other group which can help on any important factor in the economic progress of the country, these councils could be very useful, too. The "joint commission" idea is just a debating society. The time is past, moreover, when matters like these can be delegated either to a Cabinet officer here or there, or to a group of professors and theoreticians who, by reason of their daily contact with the President, influence greatly the most important decisions he makes every day. They can't really write the "guidelines" of a prosperous America, because they are unfamiliar with economic operations from direct experience.

There are many other things Mr. Kennedy himself could do — for instance, spending less time on ceremonial affairs and on political conferences and trips, and more time in dealing with the economic decline now confronting the country. The president may regard himself as a good politician, but if he doesn't soon get a program to cure the economic ills of the country, he will not be able to rely on the political fences he spends so much time trying to build up nowadays.

For an inexorable rule of politics is that popularity, eloquence, glamor, sweeping promises for the future, and denunciations of one's political opponents will be of no avail if the country is in an economic depression in November 1962, or November 1964.

The voters have always been influenced by the pocketbook nerve. There is no sign that they have become "sophisticated" or so imbued with the idea that spending their money lavishly, piling up their interest charges, and promising them trips to the moon at a cost of $20 billion or more is going to relieve their economic discontent.

Mr. Kennedy has a chance to save his administration from political defeat, and the time to do it is now. He shouldn't wait until the handwriting on the wall has proved all too true.

Ribicoff Puts Up Tough Fight For King-Anderson Medical Care Bill

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Abe Ribicoff, the charming and genial Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, is sometimes called a compromiser. He went before a closed door session of the House Ways and Means Committee the other day to try to compromise the medicare bill out of committee, but ended by giving very little ground. In fact, he stood up well under cross-examination.

"As a former colleague, I'm going to be frank with you," said Ribicoff, referring to the fact that he once served in Congress. "If we have to have some amendments to this bill to insure its enactment—and that seems to be evident—the President and I are willing to go as far as we can." "Well, that's news to me," interposed GOP Rep. Steven Derouanian of New York. "Judging by what the President said recently in Madison Square Garden, I thought that he wanted this bill, the King-Anderson measure, as now written, or nothing. How do you reconcile what the President said with what you now tell us?" "You misunderstood the President, Congressman," replied Ribicoff. "He's willing to accept some compromises to insure enactment, providing they are not substantive changes."

AN "ADA" BILL?

"I'm surprised to hear that," broke in Rep. Bruce Alger, the only Republican from Texas. "This is an ADA bill as presently drafted. As an ADA member, do you want to change it?"

"Let me set you right, sir, just to keep the record straight," retorted Ribicoff. "I'm not a member of the Americans for Democratic Action."

"No?" countered Alger. "I'll have to check my sources."

"Go ahead," said Ribicoff. "Since this is another socialized scheme, I assumed that the ADA would be for it," rasped Alger.

"Why don't you ask the ADA?" suggested Ribicoff. "This bill is popular with people all over the country. Wherever you go you will find a great majority of the voters for it."

"Not in my district," disputed Republican Derouanian. "I have renounced the bill and the people of my district have supported my position at the polls."

"Maybe that's true in your district, I do not know," replied Ribicoff. "But it's certainly not true in New York State as a whole. Two prominent Republican figures in your state, Governor Rockefeller and Senator Javits, have recognized the need for health care for the aged and have campaigned for it."

"They can do what they want," snorted Derouanian.

"I'm willing to debate you publicly on this anywhere you say," angrily retorted Ribicoff. "I think the people would support the administration's program."

"Just name the date and place," challenged Derouanian.

"That goes for me, too," chimed in Alger of Texas. "I'd be happy to debate you in my district. Come on down anytime."

"May I extend you the same invitation to come to Connecticut?" snapped the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Note—The only specific concession Ribicoff okayed was to broaden the medicare bill in order to give 3,500,000 oldsters not on Social Security the benefit of medical attention. Ribicoff said that he and Kennedy would be glad to include them. Otherwise, he insisted, he and the President

JFK's Nephew

Sargent Shriver, head of the Peace Corps and brother-in-law of President John F. Kennedy, was telling friends at dinner how he had admonished his eight-year-old son about studying harder in school.

"When Abraham Lincoln was your age," Shriver said, "he walked twelve miles back and forth to school every day and wrote his lesson on a slate in front of an open fire, with his only light from the fireplace."

"That's nothing," replied the eight-year-old. "When Uncle Jack was your age, he was President of the United States."

Alabama Banker In Washington

Charlie Meriwether, former friend of the head of the Alabama Ku Klux Klan, is reported feeling much happier in Washington in the job of Export-Import Bank director, to which President Kennedy appointed him.

Back in Alabama, things are not so happy in the department which Meriwether once occupied. There, the Montgomery Advertiser has unearthed the fact that Alabama is paying $39.50 a mile for painting white lines on state highways in contrast to a charge of $6.39 to $9.59 in adjacent Mississippi.

This price permits the contractor to earn around $869 an hour. The contract was signed when Meriwether was finance director for Alabama and bears his signature. It went to the Alabama Marking and Sign Company, run by an equipment salesman named Joe T. Barton, who, when asked about his $600,000 profit on the Alabama highway contract, said he "had partners." He declined to identify his partners.

Meriwether, as a director of the Export-Import Bank, one of the most important lending institutions in Washington, now passes on U. S. government loans to African, Asian, and Latin-American countries. He gets down to Alabama occasionally to keep his hand in local politics.

LONDON

There are vast changes in the social behavior of the young here that I find intriguing. The young are maturing more rapidly than our own children are, are raising more hell at an earlier age, and the English mothers are finding this upsetting but, even worse, un-English. The change is particularly striking in the behavior of English upper class boys.

"Up until a few years ago, the boys weren't that interested in girls," one mother of two teenage girls told me. "It was the mothers that had to get boys and girls together. One mother would call another mother and say: 'Would your Jeremy take my Penelope to the concert?'" In any of these mother-made arrangements the Penelopes were eager to go to the concert with the Jeremys: the Jeremys, on the other hand, were either indifferent, if not downright mutinous."

All that's changed in the last five years. Now Jeremy is terribly interested in all the Penelopes. Wow, is he interested! And mothers, at least the mothers of the girls, wish he weren't quite that interested in girls. Upper class girls are now sneaking off to coffee bars with the boys at 14 and 15. Going steady is beginning to take hold here as it is in our country except that here it upsets social patterns much more grievously.

For instance, a girl's coming-out party is still very important in London. But what is she coming out for? In times past, young upper class girls were very well protected and, when she came out, she was seriously introduced to people she didn't know her. But now, as one mother of three girls said rather bitterly: "By the time they come out they know everyone and everything." The coming-out party for her first two daughters was quite different from her last daughter, who had been dancing with all the boys for four or five years.

Another Scheme That Won't Work

A tacit agreement existed between East and West to accept the Berlin status quo for the present and let the tension die down. Now Khrushchev has suddenly broken that agreement. He complains of "subversive" and "fascist" and "provocative" activities by West Berliners and says Russia will not tolerate them.

He had thought that the Berlin wall would solve the problem of the escape of East Germans. It hasn't. It has aroused increasing resentment in West Berlin, too. West Berlin police have even shot at Vopos cops who fired into West Berlin. All this Khrushchev finds intolerable. He demands anew the removal of Western occupation forces from West Berlin.

He would find that that didn't work any more than the wall did. West Berlin would remain as a symbol of freedom and prosperity, an oasis surrounded by a Communist desert. Nothing short of destroying West Berlin as Rome destroyed Carthage would solve Khrushchev's problem.

The West would be untrue to all that it stands for if it allowed that. That is why, until some better solution is in sight, the forces of Western civilization must remain to defend West Berlin.

These Days

The Curse Of Keynes

To be told, at this late date, that we shall return to the Keynesian concept of planned deficit spending and to tax cutting without balancing the budget, is discouraging because one is expected to learn by experience and experience is against any such program. President Kennedy has heretofore not given the impression that he favored deficit financing.

It is unfortunate that President Kennedy in his Yale speech gave the country this dose of Milton. We do not need to have our nerves quieted; we need to be stimulated so that we can move forward. And the economy of this country cannot move forward unless drastic steps are taken in specific directions:

1. Government spending needs to be cut to the bone, because there is no honest money available for wasteful expenditures;
2. Foreign aid must be cut to the bone because we are running out of funds to aid countries which do not need aid and do not know how to use our aid;
3. Taxes must be cut immediately both for corporations and individuals to stimulate economic activity and to restore a greater respect for the payment of taxes; postponement to April 1964 will not help much now;
4. A diligent search must be made for hidden American money and for tax evaded possessions abroad. The thief who evades taxes is as much a thief as one who steals a purse;
5. If a ceiling is put on prices, it must be put on wages; otherwise industry will become obsolescent;
6. GATT cannot be permitted to control the American tariff which must be free to function as necessary to protect American industry and the jobs of American workers from unfair competition in the American market. If this is not done, a "Buy American" campaign will progress among our people which would hamper the Administration in its foreign negotiations;
7. We cannot afford to go on playing tiddlywinks with Soviet Russia or with any other country which seeks to destroy us. Our weapons must be sharp and swift.

Action along these lines will restore confidence. Inaction makes for confusion and confusion adds to fear. The President's economic advisers may know economics but not the psychology of the American people. The current recession is psychological and must be treated that way.

In his Yale speech, President Kennedy sought to restore confidence but he spoke to the Yale faculty not to the country and the Yale faculty, while undoubtedly erudite, is not enough of an audience to matter. For instance, the President treats the loss of confidence, which sent the stock market tumbling, as due to myth—the perpetuation of myths. He said:

"In recent months many have come to feel as I do that the dialogue between the parties—between business and government—between the Government and the public—is clogged by illusion and platitudes and fails to reflect the true realities of contemporary American society."

He also said:
"Mythology distracts us everywhere—in government as in business, in politics as in economics, in foreign affairs as in domestic affairs."

But that is not quite the whole story. Money rushes toward profits and runs away from losses. That is the nature of the critter. There is no myth about this. To restore confidence, the President needs to assure those who work at the mechanism called money that they will not be harassed, that they will have a fair chance to do their jobs, to earn a profit, and to rebuild their plants and equipment. Those assurances do not appear in the President's speech in clear-cut, clarion tones, although a sympathetic person can say that that is what he understands the President means.

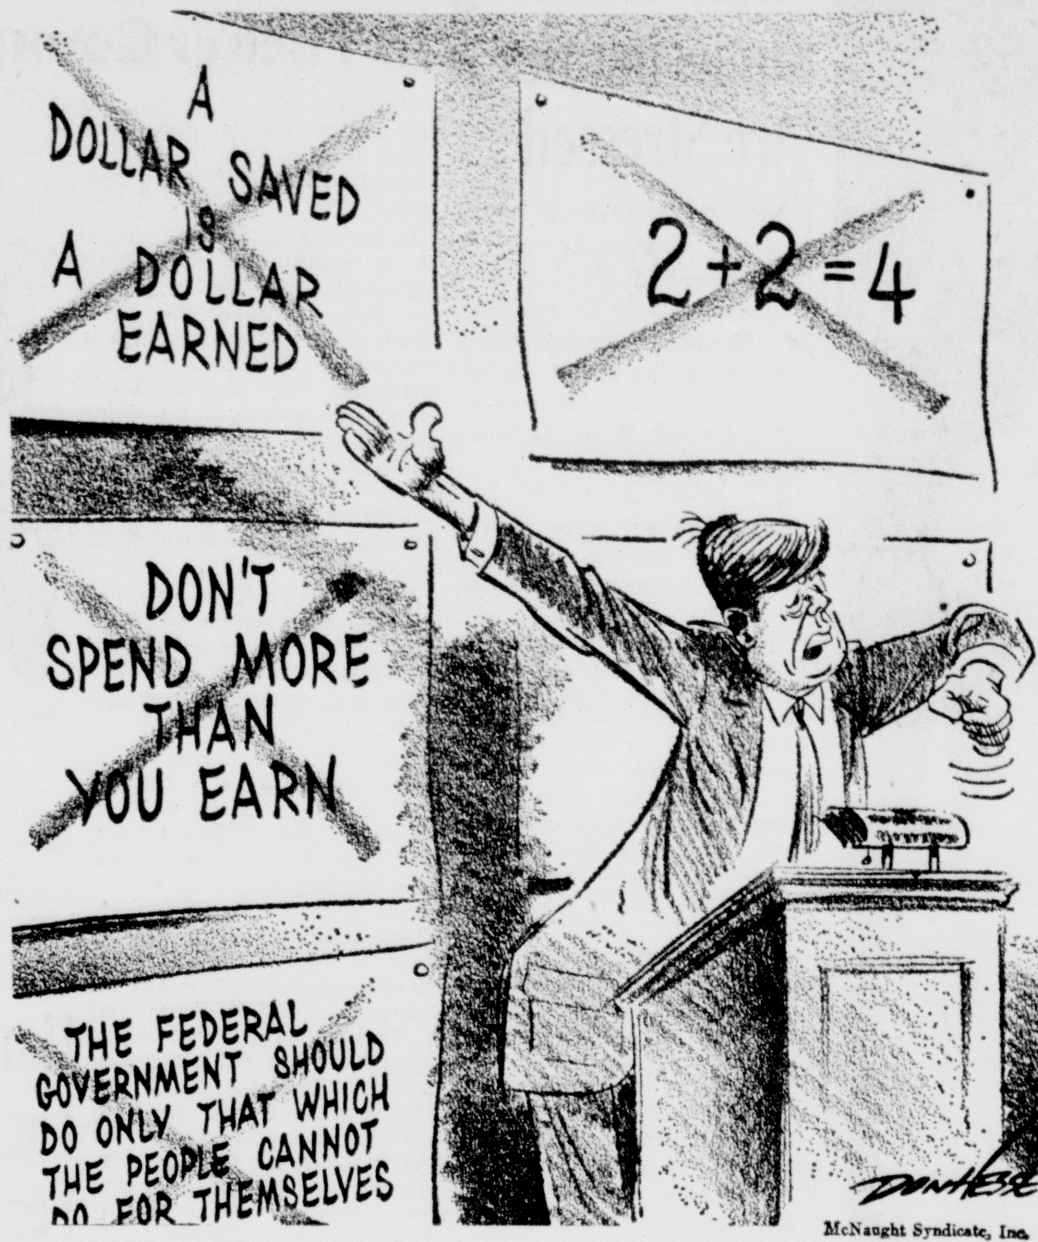

But the sympathetic person does not count as much as the unsympathetic person, particularly the frightened person who lost money in the stock market and still does not understand why.

There can be no question but that President Kennedy has come to the Presidency at a very hard time. All the mistakes of his predecessors have fallen into his lap. Those are the fortunes of politics. He faces a tough age and out of it he will emerge either a hero or a frightened man. The choice is his.

The President is entitled to support in any effort to save our currency, to make it possible to renew plant and equipment and to achieve full employment. But his program needs to be understood. American businessmen prefer to support their President rather than to oppose him.

'Let's Do Away With The Old Cliches'

Kennedy Must Fix Economy Or Lose In 1964

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — John F. Kennedy could still make a great President. Only a professional partisan would wish him to fail. Yet, if Mr. Kennedy fails in the present crisis, the country's economy will fail, too. He has a chance to save it from a fate worse than the nation encountered in the 1930s. But he is floundering. He is surrounded by inexperienced though well-meaning advisers. The outlook, therefore, is not good, and the sooner the President learns how to reverse his course and move forward, the quicker the whole situation will improve.

What can the President do that he is not now doing?
First, it is essential that all luxury spending by the government — all so-called "welfare" items, for example, that are normally attractive from a political viewpoint — be postponed and expenditures confined to absolute necessities.

Second, it is essential that all spending in the foreign field that is not absolutely necessary in carrying on the cold war be deferred. This will help materially to solve the problem of cutting down the flow of American gold to foreign countries, which is jeopardizing the future value of the dollar. And it is time for the prosperous nations of Western Europe to do more to help on the economic side in the cold war.

Third, it is essential that the confusion about taxes be cleared up at once. An "across-the-board" cut in taxes with increases in other rates to offset losses in revenue, as the President proposed the other day, is a mistake. The complexity of the subject means a delay in the enactment of selected tax changes that are really imperative and demand immediate attention — not next year but right now.

Fourth, much of the so-called "tax reform" program, involving changes in long-accustomed ways of doing business and conducting personal spending, should be postponed at least until recovery is here. To the cry that "The Treasury needs the money," the answer can be given that a huge increase in revenues from both individuals and corporations will come quickly as a prosperous economy, with full employment, emerges. Hence, this is not the time to reconstruct the whole system of taxation, even though there are certain inequities which need sooner or later to be corrected.

Fifth, it is essential that the American economy be made ready at once to compete in world markets. This means for at least a year or two a self-imposed restraint by labor on any substantial increases in industry's wage costs. It means, also, that American industry be given at once an incentive to buy new machinery and equipment, and that the rules of taxation involving what are known as "depreciation reserves" be freed from all of the discouraging restrictions that make it impossible to plan over the next five years for the investment of corporate funds in the modernization of plant. The "investment credit" of 8 per cent, which the administration has proposed, is grossly inadequate and narrow in its application.

Sixth, it is essential that the President be surrounded by more-experienced advisers. He should select a council of at least ten of the most successful businessmen in the country to sit with him regularly and advise him on all matters that affect the economy. They need not all be "moderates" or hand-picked friends of the administration. Some of the administration's most vehement critics should be included so they will have a chance to argue directly with the President. That's the way to get at the truth about what's going on in the national economy.

If the President wishes to have a separate council of ten labor leaders, or a separate council of small businessmen, or any other

Ribicoff Puts Up Tough Fight For King-Anderson Medical Care Bill

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Abe Ribicoff, the charming and genial Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, is sometimes called a compromiser. He went before a closed door session of the House Ways and Means Committee the other day to try to compromise the medicare bill out of committee, but ended by giving very little ground. In fact, he stood up well under cross-examination.

"As a former colleague, I'm going to be frank with you," said Ribicoff, referring to the fact that he once served in Congress. "If we have to have some amendments to this bill to insure its enactment—and that seems to be evident—the President and I are willing to go as far as we can."

"Well, that's news to me," interposed GOP Rep. Steven Derouanian of New York. "Judging by what the President said recently in Madison Square Garden, I thought that he wanted this bill, the King-Anderson measure, as now written, or nothing. How do you reconcile what the President said with what you now tell us?"

"You misunderstood the President, Congressman," replied Ribicoff. "He's willing to accept some compromises to insure enactment, providing they are not substantive changes."

AN "ADA" BILL?

"I'm surprised to hear that," broke in Rep. Bruce Alger, the only Republican from Texas. "This is an ADA bill as presently drafted. As an ADA member, do you want to change it?"

"Let me set you right, sir, just to keep the record straight," retorted Ribicoff. "I'm not a member of the Americans for Democratic Action."

"No?" countered Alger. "I'll have to check my sources."

"Go ahead," said Ribicoff.

"Since this is another socialized scheme, I assumed that the ADA would be for it," rasped Alger.

"Why don't you ask the ADA?" suggested Ribicoff. "This bill is popular with people all over the country. Wherever you go you will find a great majority of the voters for it."

"Not in my district," disputed Republican Derouanian. "I have renounced the bill and the people of my district have supported my position at the polls."

"Maybe that's true in your district, I do not know," replied Ribicoff. "But it's certainly not true in New York State as a whole. Two prominent Republican figures in your state, Governor Rockefeller and Senator Javits, have recognized the need for health care for the aged and have campaigned for it."

"They can do what they want," snorted Derouanian.

"I'm willing to debate you publicly on this anywhere you say," angrily retorted Ribicoff. "I think the people would support the administration's program."

"Just name the date and place," challenged Derouanian.

"That goes for me, too," chimed in Alger of Texas. "I'd be happy to debate you in my district. Come on down anytime."

"May I extend you the same invitation to come to Connecticut?" snapped the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Note—The only specific concession Ribicoff okayed was to broaden the medicare bill in order to give 3,500,000 oldsters not on Social Security the benefit of medical attention. Ribicoff said that he and Kennedy would be glad to include them. Otherwise, he insisted, he and the President would never sacrifice the heart of the King-Anderson bill.

The young are maturing more rapidly than our own children are, are raising more hell at an earlier age, and the English mothers are finding this upsetting but, even worse, un-English. The change is particularly striking in the behavior of English upper class boys.

"Up until a few years ago, the boys weren't that interested in girls," one mother of two teenage girls told me. "It was the mothers that had to get boys and girls together. Going steady is beginning to take hold here as it is in our country except that here it upsets social patterns much more grievously.

For instance, a girl's coming-out party is still very important in London. But what is she coming out for? In times past, young upper class girls were very well protected and, when she came out, she was seriously introduced to people she didn't know and who didn't know her. But now, as one mother of three girls said rather bitterly: "By the time they come out they know everyone and everything." The coming-out party for her first two daughters was quite different from her last daughter, who had been dancing with all the boys for four or five years.

Kids here are, again like our own, growing up much faster, demanding more things (and thrills) at an earlier age. (A young girl named Melanie Franklin threw a $21,000 party on an island in the Thames the other night in which the guests were asked to bring along two complete changes of clothes—ball gowns for waiting and pants and sweaters for twisting!)

Teenage kids of all classes—for the first time in England's history—have a lot of money to spend. A teenage boy can earn $40 to $70 a week, which frequently is as much as his father makes. He slips old mums $15 of this for his board and room and spends the rest on motor bikes and general fun and games. This too has changed and loosened ancient social patterns enormously, and—some of the hardshell Tories would say—grievously. The kids are all over the place—necking, twisting, and racing about the countryside with a total lack of inhibition that is not altogether a bad thing.

For one thing, British intellectuals and writers are speaking up with more explosive creative force than almost anywhere else. Kenneth Tynan, the brilliant drama critic of The Observer, estimates that Britain has been producing new promising young dramatists at the rate of one a month for about five years, which, God knows, no other country is doing. As in our country, the beatniks, who had quite a run in this country, are dead.

Now, the influential young ones—and I mean from age 20 to 28—in art, advertising, theater design, television, are well-dressed, sharp as tacks, and, above all, energetic.

Again, like our own, more British youths are going to universities, broadening the cultural base but also, some complain, making it much shallower. Already Kingsley Amis has complained: "A university admissions policy demanding even less than our own demands—for that is what a larger intake means—will wreck academic standards beyond repair. Already a girl who has literally never heard of metre (I found this out last week) has come to a university to study English literature. What will her successor have never heard of if the doors are opened wider—rhyme, poem, sentence?"

The university students are getting married younger, sometimes while still in school, sometimes just after they get out. Student interest in politics, particularly left wing politics, which has always been before been here, has declined a great deal. Like our own right wing political movement in the colleges, the campaign for nuclear disarmament is noisy but the numbers of students involved are very small.

The hostility to culture among university students is blamed, as in our own country, on the influence of television. Television, as a matter of fact, is blamed for a great many of the changes of the very young, including the most revolutionary change—the discovery by young teenage British boys of the desirability of young teenage British girls—and not everyone thinks that is such a bad thing.

The Circus Maximus of ancient Rome had a capacity of 385,000—Factographs. Too bad the World Series hadn't been invented then!

A Marengo, Ill., citizen reported to police 35 raccoons broke into and ransacked his home. The little varmints with their black eye "masks" not only look like burglars but they really are!

A paradox is the front lawn dandelion — the yellowest of weeds and yet the toughest!

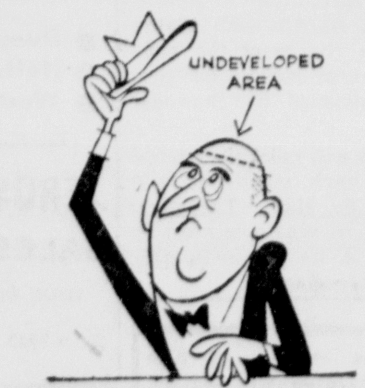

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

From the notebooks of philosopher Robert Campbell: The chief problem of the modern family is having too much money left over at the end of the money . . . There's nothing wrong with having a one-track mind . . . provided that you're on the right track . . . Diets are for those who are thick and tired of it . . . Always forget the past. No man ever backed into prosperity . . . The most underdeveloped territory in the world lies under your own hat . . . Newspapersmen often use the editorial "we" so the reader will think there are too many of them to lick . . . American motorists take good care of their cars. And they keep the pedestrians in good running condition, too.

Joey Bishop admits that when it comes to golf, he is not exactly another Snead or Palmer. "Only last week," he told one audience, "I barely missed a hole in one—by six strokes. My handicap is an honest caddie."

Bishop goes on to explain that in his youth he was far too poor to think of golf. "When it snowed," he recalls, "I didn't even have a sled. I had to come down-hill on my cousin—who wasn't bad."

A Democratic candidate in New England was making a campaign speech in what he realized was hostile territory. "My friends," he orated defiantly, "I was born a Democrat, always have been a Democrat, and expect to die a Democrat." A man in the crowd jeered, "Not very ambitious, are you?"

telligence Agency headquarters carries 30 per cent more traffic.

The unusual part of the situation is that while traffic is up 10 per cent, the number of autos in the metropolitan area is up only 8.8 per cent. This means that car owners, on average, are driving more this year than last.

Traffic experts, wondering why this is so, are inclined to the belief that the elimination of trolley cars and their replacement by buses cause more workers to drive to work.

Another reason for the heavier traffic, they believe, is the constant increase in the numbers of vacationers who come to Washington each year. The traffic experts took their count in the spring—a time when adult and school-age sightseers visiting Washington was at a peak.

Role Of Plague Flies In Cholera Disputed

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

ern medicos. Vast swarms of these insects were noted prior to many epidemics, especially in the south.

The critter was described as "a fly of dull, ochery-yellow color, over a quarter of inch long, with a quarter inch wing spread." Physicians of that era made sketchy descriptions of the distended female, prominence of the eyes, and the placement of various hairs and spines.

A peculiar yellow haze in the atmosphere just before a cholera outbreak was observed on several occasions. Hordes of yellow plague flies were the logical explanation. They were thought to carry the deadly poison causing cholera. Now and then the pests were so thick that objects, especially on fig trees and in damp filthy places were obscured by their bodies.

Did these flies exist? Was their appearance coincidental or did they play a role in the spread of cholera and yellow fever? There are no references to the fly in standard books on entomology despite the fact that 100 years ago a theory of disease was built around this insect. The species does not exist today.

The most logical explanation, according to Dr. Jones, is that when epidemics struck the community, people became careless about sanitation and the breakdown of the disposal of garbage and sewage attracted flies. There also is a possibility that the plague fly existed; if so, improvement in sanitation may have contributed to its extinction.

But the plague fly served a useful purpose. It suggested the idea that diseases could be spread by insects. The relationship between mosquitoes and yellow fever or malaria may have had its origin in this line of thinking.

ITCHING ARM

A. M. writes: For more than a year I have had an itch on my right arm from the elbow down to almost the beginning of the wrist. At times it gets better and then returns. Otherwise I have had but little sickness. I'm 68. Can you, from the above, indicate the nature of the trouble and the remedy for same?

REPLY

Dryness of the skin is the most common cause of itching at age 68. Apply cold cream or lanolin.

INTESTINAL FLORA

E. C. writes: Does buttermilk build a health colon?

REPLY

No, but it might "settle" the colon by encouraging certain bacteria to multiply and others to leave. This is known as a change in bacterial flora. Many germs are normal inhabitants of the intestine and aid digestion by altering the chemical reaction.

CAFFEINE AND ARTERIES

H. B. writes: Will drinking tea or coffee cause the arteries to harden?

REPLY

No.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Army Schooling Opportunities Are Stressed

KEYSER—A review of educational opportunities afforded young people by the U. S. Army in keeping with the Kiwanis theme of "We Build" was the central topic of a talk given to local Kiwanians during their weekly dinner-meeting at the Rosemont Restaurant.

Sfc. Joseph A. Celich, local Army recruiting officer and a member of the club, was introduced by program chairman Harold Wimer.

The speaker pointed out how the Army attempts to qualify a man for the school he is going to before he enlists and then gave some ideas of the various courses offered. He told of the aptitude tests and interviews given the enlistee for any school or career group and stressed that whatever his decision might be he must have the approval of the Department of Army.

Celich said that the enlistment program is of particular interest at this time of the year when so many high school graduates are thinking of going into some branch of the service. He said it is important that they be taken from the unemployment market and be placed in the Army where they can learn a specific trade.

He urged all Kiwanians in helping to build better men out of the high school students; not only the recent graduates but also those who have dropped out before completing their required course of study.

The recent alarm over the number of drop-outs has captured the attention of all Kiwanians and is one of their major projects for the coming year. Following the recruiter's talk a question and answer period followed.

Vice-President Alan Paine, presided at the meeting. Guests included five members from the Cumberland Club—Albert Darby, Charles Helmich, Lawrence Brown, David Kirk, and Jack McClure.

Army Schooling Opportunities Are Stressed

KEYSER — A review of educational opportunities afforded young people by the U. S. Army in keeping with the Kiwanis theme of "We Build" was the central topic of a talk given to local Kiwanians during their weekly dinner-meeting at the Rosemont Restaurant.

Sfc. Joseph A. Celich, local Army recruiting officer and a member of the club, was introduced by program chairman Harold Wimer.

The speaker pointed out how the Army attempts to qualify a man for the school he is going to before he enlists and then gave some ideas of the various courses offered. He told of the aptitude tests and interviews given the enlistee for any school or career group and stressed that whatever his decision might be he must have the approval of the Department of Army.

Celich said that the enlistment program is of particular interest at this time of the year when so many high school graduates are thinking of going into some branch of the service. He said it is important that they be taken from the unemployment market and be placed in the Army where they can learn a specific trade.

He urged all Kiwanians in helping to build better men out of the high school students; not only the recent graduates but also those who have dropped out before completing their required course of study.

The recent alarm over the number of drop-outs has captured the attention of all Kiwanians and is one of their major projects for the coming year. Following the recruiter's talk a question and answer period followed.

Vice-President Alan Paine, presided at the meeting. Guests included five members from the Cumberland Club—Albert Darby, Charles Helmich, Lawrence Brown, David Kirk, and Jack McClure.

Palmer And Rosburg Tie For Lead In National Open Tournament

Littler Loses Putting Touch, Trails By Four

Leaders Card 139s At Halfway Point; Double Round Today

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Favorite Arnold Palmer, with a 3-under-par 68, and unorthodox Bob Rosburg, with 69, zoomed ahead of faltering Gene Littler Friday and forged into the halfway lead in the 62nd National Open Golf Championship with 139.

Littler, the defending champion and first round pace-setter with 69, lost his putting touch and dropped off the pace with a 74 for a 143.

Hitting the ball superbly from tee to green, the placid, effortlessly-smiling Littler from San Diego, Calif., ran into repeated frustrations on Oakmont's massive, hump-backed greens. He three-putted the first hole, failed on birdie putts of 8 feet and hit a climax of futility when he dubbed an easy 2-footer for a bogey 6 on the 598-yard 12th.

Littler's face seemed to pale and his shoulders sag when the putt tipped the cup and veered away. He had knocked in 10 straight pars — some of which could have been birdies — when this disappointment hit. He didn't have a birdie on the round.

Facing Saturday's exhausting double round climax over the 6,894-yard, par 71 Oakmont Country Club course, Palmer and Rosburg had a two-stroke advantage over Billy Maxwell, who scrambled to a 70 for 141. A trio is another shot back at 142. They are Jack Nicklaus, the hefty, 200-pound pro rookie from Columbus, Ohio, who had a 70; South Africa's Gary Player, with his second straight 71, and young Bobby Nichols, 72.

Player, like Littler, couldn't sink a putt while the 26-year-old Nichols, a real tournament surprise, blew himself to bogeys on three of the last four holes when it appeared he might tie for the lead. He three-putted the 18th from 15 feet after his birdie putt rolled over the right corner of the cup.

For the second straight day a record crowd — 19,971 — poured over the famous old course in the mountains of Western Pennsylvania which has been a graveyard of championship hopes for more than half a century.

The cutoff point, reducing the field from 150 to the low 50 and ties, was 150. Sam Snead barely squeezed in at 150 after a 74. Mike Souchak had to get two birdies on the tough last nine to 73 and 148. Don January, 1961 PGA runnerup, missed it by one stroke.

Jerry Barber, the reigning PGA champion, failed with 154. Former Masters and PGA champion Jack Burke also had 154. Former two-time Open champion Cary Middlecoff also failed, taking an 8 at No. 17 and finishing at 153.

A crowd of about 100, including many former players, attended the services.

Among those attending were WVU Athletic Director Robert N. (Red) Brown, football coach Gene Corum, assistants Ed Shockey and Russ Crane, former assistant Athletic Director Lowry M. Stoops, and Bill Hillen, Freddy Wyant, Gene Lamone and many other stars who played under Lewis in the 50's.

Cleveland Tops Yanks In Series Opener, 3-0

Jim Grant Tosses 5-Hitter; Al Luplow Socks 2-Run Homer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rookie Al Luplow's two-run homer and Jim Grant's five-hit pitching gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night in the opener of their four-game weekend showdown.

Luplow connected in the sixth inning to break up a pitching duel between Grant and Ralph Terry, who had blanked the Indians for 16 consecutive innings. Terry shut out the Indians, 5-0, last week.

Terry, who suffered his sixth loss against seven victories, gave up a double to Jerry Kindall before Luplow's blow. The Indians scored their other run in the eighth off Bob Turley on Kindall's second double and Ty Cline's single.

Grant, on weekend leave from the Army, struck out five and walked three in racking up his fourth victory against one loss. The Indians backed him up with two double plays and several other sparkling plays.

The Yankees had their best chance against Grant in the first inning when they loaded the bases with the help of two walks but Grant blazed a third strike past Elston Howard to retire the side.

Grant also worked his way out of trouble in the sixth when John Blanchard walked and Yogi Berra singled two out. Bubba Phillips ended the threat by throwing out Howard on a slow roller down the third base line.

The victory moved the third-place Indians to within a half-game of the Yankees, who entered Friday night's game with a three-percentage-point edge over the Minnesota Twins.

Grant, who tossed 5 2/3 innings, struck out five and walked three. He pitched a 5-0 game, his first since May 10 when he downed the Phenomena, 14-5.

PPG collected 11 hits with Jim Lease heading the offensive with three-for-three while Jim Baker, John Esposito, Austin Van Meter and Pete Wageley had two blows each. C. & P. nicked Wageley for 11 hits, six of which were shared by Al Shaffer, Gellner and Harsh.

Hayden Phillips, making his first start of the season for the Moose, limited the Elks to four hits.

Donnie Madden headed the Moose attack with three hits, Bob Keyser and Donnie Gibson smashed triples and Johnny Price had a two-bagger to his credit. A sheering catch by Gibson of a drive from "Pooch" Orndorff's bat to centerfield was the fielding highlight.

Blanked until the final frame, the Elks coupled two hits with three errors for their three runs. B. Cook accounted for two of the Elks' four bingles.

Ritter's A.C. moved into third place by trimming the Celanese A.A. at Post Field by the score of 5-2.

An error by Elio Chacon helped the Cubs score two more runs in the fifth and Banks led off the sixth inning with his homer into the upper left field stands.

Palmer And Rosburg Tie For Lead In National Open Tournament

Littler Loses Putting Touch, Trails By Four

Leaders Card 139s
At Halfway Point;
Double Round Today

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Favorite Arnold Palmer, with a 3-under-par 68, and unorthodox Bob Rosburg, with 69, zoomed ahead of faltering Gene Littler Friday and forged into the halfway lead in the 62nd National Open Golf Championship with 139.

Littler, the defending champion and first round pace-setter with 69, lost his putting touch and dropped off the pace with a 74 for a 143.

Hitting the ball superbly from tee to green, the placid, effortlessly-swinging Littler from San Diego, Calif., ran into repeated frustrations on Oakmont's massive, hump-backed greens. He three-putted the first hole, failed on birdie putts of 6 to 8 feet and hit a climax of futility when he dugged an easy 2-footer for a bogey 6 on the 598-yard 12th.

Littler's face seemed to pale and his shoulders sag when the putt lipped the cup and veered away. He had knocked in 10 straight pars — some of which could have been birdies — when this disappointment hit. He didn't have a birdie on the round.

Facing Saturday's exhausting double round climax over the 6,894-yard, par 71 Oakmont Country Club course, Palmer and Rosburg had a two-stroke advantage over Billy Maxwell, who scrambled to a 70 for 141. A trio is another shot back at 142. They are Jack Nicklaus, the hefty, 200-pound pro rookie from Columbus, Ohio, who had a 70; South Africa's Gary Player, with his second straight 71, and young Bobby Nichols, 72.

Player, like Littler, couldn't sink a putt while the 26-year-old Nichols, a real tournament surprise, blew himself to bogeys on three of the last four holes when it appeared he might tie for the lead. He three-putted the 18th from 15 feet after his birdie putt rolled over the right corner of the cup.

For the second straight day a record crowd — 19,971 — poured over the famous old course in the mountains of Western Pennsylvania which has been a graveyard of championship hopes for more than half a century.

The cutoff point, reducing the field from 150 to the low 50 and ties, was 150. Sam Snead barely squeezed in at 150 after a 74. Mike Souchak had to get two birdies on the tough last nine for 73 and 148. Don January, 1961 PGA runnerup, missed it by one stroke.

Jerry Barber, the reigning PGA champion, failed with 154. Former Masters and PGA champion Jack Burke also had 154. Former two-time open champion Cary Middlecoff also failed, taking an 8 at No. 17 and finishing at 153.

Cleveland Tops Yanks In Series Opener, 3-0

Jim Grant Tosses 5-Hitter; Al Luplow Socks 2-Run Homer

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rookie Al Luplow's two-run homer and Jim Grant's five-hit pitching gave the Cleveland Indians a 3-0 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night in the opener of their four-game weekend showdown.

Luplow connected in the sixth inning to break up a pitching duel between Grant and Ralph Terry, who had blanked the Indians for 16 consecutive innings. Terry shut out the Indians, 5-0, last week.

Terry, who suffered his sixth loss against seven victories, gave up a double to Jerry Kindall before Luplow's blow. The Indians scored their other run in the eighth off Bob Turley on Kindall's second double and Ty Cline's single.

U.S. Women's Net Team Leads 3-0 In Wightman Matches

LONDON (AP)—The tennis girls of the United States built up a 3-0 lead over Britain in the annual Wightman Cup matches Friday and stood poised to retain the trophy.

They need to win only one of Saturday's four matches to take the Cup home.

Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., overcame an attack of stomach cramps to beat Ann Haydon 6-3, 6-8, 6-4 in the opening match of the day. The blonde American was hobbling painfully as the match ended.

Christine Truman, carrying the main hopes of the 5,000 British fans in Wimbledon's No. 1 court, bowed to Mrs. Karen Hantze Sussman of Chula Vista, Calif., 6-4, 7-5.

Finally, the U.S. team captain, Mrs. Margaret duPont of Joseph, Ore., and Margaret Varner of Wilmington, Del.—the two oldest members of the American team—won the doubles to complete the 3-0 sweep. They beat a couple of British kids, Deirdre Catt and Elizabeth Starkie, 6-2, 3-6, 6-2.

$127,816 Spent In Losing Cause

Hume Reports

LA PLATA, Md. (AP)—David Hume has reported he spent $127,816—$118,618 from his own pocket—in his unsuccessful campaign to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

In a report filed with the 7th Judicial Circuit Court of Charles County, Hume said all but $9,198 of his campaign expenditures came from his own pocket.

Hume's total expenditure was less than that reported by Gov. Tawes but more than that reported by the third principal Democratic gubernatorial candidate, George P. Mahoney.

Tawes, who won the nomination, had reported spending $30,770 and Mahoney $124,837.

Maryland law says that a statewide candidate may not contribute more than $10,000 to his own campaign, but—as Hume noted on his report—the law also provides: "Any person a candidate for nomination for public office or a candidate for public office may pay his own expenses for postage, telegrams, telephoning, stationery, printing, advertising, radio and television programs, publishing, expressage, travel and board."

W. G. Bennett Crain who, like Hume lives in Charles County, also filed his expenditure report in the La Plata court.

Crain reported expenditures of $30,016 in his unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the May 15 primary. Crain said all but $430 came from his own pocket.

Hume Reports $127,816 Spent In Losing Cause

LA PLATA, Md. (AP)—David Hume has reported he spent $127,816—$118,618 from his own pocket—in his unsuccessful campaign to win the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

In a report filed with the 7th Judicial Circuit Court of Charles County, Hume said all but $9,198 of his campaign expenditures came from his own pocket.

Hume's total expenditure was less than that reported by Gov. Taves but more than that reported by the third principal Democratic gubernatorial candidate, George P. Mahoney.

Taves, who won the nomination, had reported spending $350,770 and Mahoney $124,837.

Maryland law says that a state-wide candidate may not contribute more than $10,000 to his own campaign, but—as Hume noted on his report—the law also provides:

"Any person a candidate for nomination for public office or a candidate for public office may pay his own expenses for postage, telegrams, telephoning, stationery, printing, advertising, radio and television programs, publishing, expressage, travel and board."

W. G. Bennett Crain who, like Hume lives in Charles County, also filed his expenditure report in the La Plata court.

Crain reported expenditures of $30,016 in his unsuccessful campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the May 15 primary. Crain said but $430 came from his own pocket.

Lumber Truck Overtakes, Kills Driver

Harman H. Hedrick Crushed To Death

A 29-year-old father of two youngsters who lives in Harman, W. Va., was killed instantly Thursday when he was crushed beneath a lumber truck which turned over along a mountain road in Randolph County.

Authorities said Harman Harold Hedrick died of a crushed chest and abdomen.

The victim was operating a truck loaded with lumber along the mountain road which apparently gave way under the weight of the load, said authorities.

The truck toppled over a 14-foot embankment and the victim was pinned under the wreckage. Hedrick was hauling the lumber from a sawmill on Rich Mountain to Beverly when the accident occurred at Big Run.

Cpl. C. W. Wilson of the State Police at Elkins said the roadway apparently gave way under the weight. Dr. C. L. Leonard, county coroner, said the man died instantly.

A native of Macksville, the victim was a son of Guy and Tayla (McDonald) Hedrick who also live in Harman.

Besides his parents and wife, Mrs. Martha L. (Bland) Hedrick, the victim is survived by two sons, Harold and Jeffrey Hedrick at home; two sisters, Mrs. James Bennett, Hyattsville, Md., Miss Carole Hedrick, at home, and a brother, Harlan Ray Hedrick, Mouth-of-Seneca.

A funeral service will be conducted today at 2 p.m. (EST) at the High Rock Evangelical United Brethren Church with Rev. Blair Burr, pastor, officiating.

Interment will be in the North Fork Memorial Cemetery near Riverton.

Planning Unit Urges Action On C&O Canal

A resolution recommending the passage of legislation to establish the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal National Historical Park was adopted by the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission at its meeting Thursday night at the Court House.

A copy of the resolution was sent yesterday to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs which has the measure before it for consideration.

The resolution, adopted unanimously Thursday night, was approved on motion of James A. Perrin, seconded by John T. Mason.

This resolution pointed out that there is a dire need for the creation of recreation areas for the residents of Allegany County and adjacent counties. The creation of the C&O Canal National Historical Park would attract tourists to this area and strengthen the county's economy, the resolution notes.

The servicing and facilities needed to handle the influx of tourists would create jobs in the county which has been designated as a depressed area, the measure added.

Preservation of an area of important historical significance was cited as another reason for favorable legislative action.

To Attend Convention

Anne Perry Winner, 600½ Ridgewood Avenue, and Rose Ann Blake, 626 Montgomery Avenue, will attend the second North American convention of Medical Laboratory Technologists June 17-22 in Washington.

Senate Unit Approves ABL Land Purchase

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Navy request to purchase additional land near its Allegheny Ballistics Laboratory in West Virginia was approved Friday by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The laboratory, operated for the Navy by the Hercules Powder Co., is located in Mineral County near the Maryland border and has been used primarily for research work on Polaris missile motors.

The importance of the purchase, however, is a matter of widely conflicting opinions.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., said he was convinced the land acquisition would mean the facility would be enlarged and possibly play an important role in moon space probes in the future.

The Navy stuck by its previous statement that no significant increase in personnel was anticipated and that the additional land was merely to provide more space for the present operations of the laboratory.

The request by the Navy had been for $120,000 to buy an additional 1,200 acres near the lab.

Staggers said he feels the laboratory "...is going to increase in importance in our national space program which is growing."

"I don't care how the Navy interprets it or how much they deny it," he added.

Staggers said the lab was working on solid rocket fuels, and that as the emphasis on the solid propellant increases in space programs so will the importance of the West Virginia operation.

He said the solid rocket propellant was expected to be used in the future moon shots.

According to C. T. Butler, director of Hercules' chemical propulsion division, however, the additional tract was needed because the laboratory's operations were too crowded in the present location.

He said some of the older office building would be replaced and that the magazines where the fueled-up rocket motors are stored would be spaced out farther for safety reasons.

Butler also said the lab was working for the Navy's Bureau of Weapons, which was not participating in the moonshot program.

Council Of Alleghenies Adopts Constitution

By ALBERT D. DARBY News Staff Writer

A constitution for the newly organized Council of the Alleghenies, Inc., was adopted last night at a meeting of about 40 persons from 17 tri-state area communities at Blackwater Lodge in Blackwater Falls State Park near Davis, W. Va.

The constitution stresses the purposes of the organization in two introductory paragraphs which read:

"The Council is a voluntary, non-profit organization of public and private, educational, cultural, religious, economic, health and welfare agencies and individuals concerned with the general welfare of the people of the Allegheny Highlands."

"The purposes of the Council are to preserve, develop and share the rich and meaningful traditions, folklore, history and human values and resources of the people of the Allegheny Highlands, and to aid and coordinate the efforts of existing organizations in fulfilling the cultural, educational, economic, social, and spiritual needs of these residents."

Specific aims included are the fostering of development of small industries and home employment of the residents of the mountains, particularly isolated families, by "undergirding public and private agencies founded for this purpose."

Another aim is "to encourage recreational and tourist development within the area, such as parks, playgrounds and nature preserves, with special emphasis on the rich and scenic natural resources of the Highlands."

The council will have a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, plus an executive secretary to be appointed by and responsible to the board of directors. Its principal office and place of business will be at Grantsville.

Before the business meeting began, Dr. Patrick Gainer, an English professor at West Virginia University, entertained the group with a number of folk songs which he had learned from West Virginia mountaineers.

Dr. Gainer accompanied his songs with a rebeck, a primitive three-stringed instrument.

Communities represented at last night's meeting were Beverly, Davis, Elkins, Harman, Kingwood, Morgantown and Clarksburg, W. Va.; Baltimore, Cumberland, Grantsville and Oakland, Md.; Greensburg, Pittsburgh, Somerset, Scottsdale, Salisbury and Springs, Pa.

Dr. Alta E. Schrock, temporary chairman, presided at the meeting.

Tax Return Date Clarified

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Maryland taxpayers who estimate their income don't have to file second quarter declarations until July 15, the State Income Tax Division said Friday.

Benjamin F. Marsh, division chief, said his office has been receiving numerous queries, particularly from the Washington area, about when forms would be mailed for the second quarter.

The confusion apparently arises, Marsh said, from the fact that federal returns on such income are due for the second quarter on June 15. The State of Maryland switched its date to July 15 two years ago.

"We are now beginning to mail out the forms," Marsh said.

The quarterly tax returns apply only to those persons who do not have their income tax deducted from paychecks.

Such returns are due in Maryland on April 15, July 15, Oct. 15 and Jan. 15. The federal government has the same dates in April and January but collects the second and third quarters on June 15 and Sept. 15, respectively.

Opening this morning's activities will be registration and reception at 9 a.m. with a business session beginning one hour later.

Approximately 400 delegates and visitors from throughout Maryland and the District of Columbia are attending the convention, said Herman L. Myers, convention chairman.

Hunt Is Honored

Yesterday morning J. William Hunt, first editor of the Cumberland Sunday Times and a civic leader now engaged in writing a history of the city, was honored with a special award for civic service during opening ceremonies of the three-day convention.

In presenting the award, Mr. Myers, local and state secretary of the Eagles, said Mr. Hunt deserved "the plaudits of all right thinking people for his warm and wonderful editorials about Cumberland over a period of many years."

Mr. Hunt replied, "There is no limit to what these Eagles will do. I have cast a lot of bread upon the waters and I guess today is comeback day for me. The Cumberland Aerie of the Eagles, which has been in existence since 1902 and is only four years younger than the national fraternal order, has made Cumberland a better place in which to live through the years."

Eagles Welcomed, Praised

Eagles Maryland and D. C. president Thomas J. Hopwood of Cumberland and Carl J. McGriff of South Bend, Ind., past grand worthy president of the national Eagles order, welcomed the delegates and visitors.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech said, "The Eagles have contributed to every charitable organization and drive in this city and I welcome you here for this convention." Water Commissioner G. Ray Light and Police Commissioner Philmore Fleming also welcomed the Eagles here as members of the fraternal organization.

Mr. Myers, in making his state secretary's report, said the Eagles had pledged half a million dollars to the Max Bear Heart Fund and that their "Jobs After 40" legislation to prevent discrimination in employment based on age alone had passed the House of Delegates during the last session of the state legislature and failed to pass the Senate only because of the re-apportionment fight. He promised that the bill would be brought up again during the next session of the Legislature.

Lumber Truck Overtakes, Kills Driver

Harman H. Hedrick Crushed To Death

A 29-year-old father of two youngsters who lives in Harman, W. Va., was killed instantly Thursday when he was crushed beneath a lumber truck which turned over along a mountain road in Randolph County.

Authorities said Harman Harold Hedrick died of a crushed chest and abdomen.

The victim was operating a truck loaded with lumber along the mountain road which apparently gave way under the weight of the load, said authorities.

The truck toppled over a 14-foot embankment and the victim was pinned under the wreckage. Hedrick was hauling the lumber from a sawmill on Rich Mountain to Beverly when the accident occurred at Big Run.

Cpl. C. W. Wilson of the State Police at Elkins said the roadway apparently gave way under the weight. Dr. C. L. Leonard, county coroner, said the man died instantly.

A native of Macksville, the victim was a son of Guy and Twyla (McDonald) Hedrick who also live in Harman.

Besides his parents and wife, Mrs. Martha L. (Bland) Hedrick, the victim is survived by two sons, Harold and Jeffrey Hedrick at home; two sisters, Mrs. James Bennett, Hyattsville, Md., Miss Carole Hedrick, at home; and a brother, Harlan Ray Hedrick, Mouth-of-Seneca.

Planning Unit Urges Action On C&O Canal

A resolution recommending the passage of legislation to establish the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal National Historical Park was adopted by the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission at its meeting Thursday night at the Court House.

A copy of the resolution was sent yesterday to the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs which has the measure before it for consideration.

The resolution, adopted unanimously Thursday night, was approved on motion of James A. Perrin, seconded by John T. Mason.

This resolution pointed out that there is a dire need for the creation of recreation areas for the residents of Allegany County and adjacent counties. The creation of the C&O Canal National Historical Park would attract tourists to this area and strengthen the county's economy, the resolution notes.

The servicing and facilities needed to handle the influx of tourists would create jobs in the county which has been designated as a depressed area, the measure added.

Preservation of an area of important historical significance was cited as another reason for favorable legislative action.

'Hazel'---Human Cactus But Marshmallow Soft

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Arthur Treacher made the "Perfect Butler" famous in movies but Shirley Booth, we suspect, will be remembered a lot longer as the loveable gal on television who made the Imperfect Maid even more famous.

But if you haven't already noticed, it's all a big trick. "Hazel," the human cactus with a marshmallow heart, is no maid. Shirley is a magician, you see, and her wondrous sleight-of-hand(some) acting makes you think you are watching maid-faces-life.

She's too modest, of course, to admit to the Booth slyness which she uses like a mixer blending laughs with tears. But she does confess to the plot trickery.

"I'm not really playing a maid," she smiled. "I'm a three-in-one domestic sometimes called Mother."

The mother image in "Hazel" is one of the reasons the show is one of the few big hits of television this season. She's a character everyone can identify themselves with.

She's "Mother Knows Best" with a feather duster in her hand and that marshmallow for a heart masquerading under the name of "Hazel."

The other reason for the show's big success, of course, is Shirley. It is one of those rare combinations of slick actress meets slick role.

Most series take a while to jell. "Shirley," says director Bill Russell, "hit the bull's-eye almost immediately."

Peggy On Road

If you've wondered what happened to Peggy Cass, who has been a panelist recently on "To Tell the Truth," the truth is that she's on the road with a show, "Everybody Loves Opal." Peggy is also slated to star in a musical at the Dallas State Fair in July.

Many a star looks upon the family budget as a financial brake that usually needs re-lining!

Kaye Feuds With Producer Merrick

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—This is to inform the family and friends of Kaye Ballard that she is not rich, wealthy, affluent or loaded.

Miss Ballard says the idea has permeated her circle of relatives and acquaintances that she has all kinds of money, chiefly, because she's been so successful in "Carnival" and she appears every week on The Perry Como Show.

"This has been the luckiest year for me," she says. "I'm doing great—but I'm making less money than I did before I got so lucky."

"I was making $2,000 a week or better," she says. "But I wanted to be on Broadway. David Merrick offered me $200 a week to do the part in 'Carnival', but if I wanted to make more money, I should stay in night clubs."

She took the "Carnival" part, for the salary which was offered, but she isn't overly enthusiastic about the pay scale.

"If it wasn't for the Como Show I couldn't pay the rent."

Miss Ballard also is upset about the upcoming musical about the late Fanny Brice. For years, this project has been close to her heart.

"It was my idea originally. I researched it, I recorded it, I took the idea to Jule Styne (the composer). And, of course, I wanted very badly to play the part of Fanny Brice. Now Merrick is planning to do it—with Anne Bancroft. If I have to lose the part, I'm glad it's to someone as wonderful as Anne Bancroft. But I am unhappy about not even getting a chance to read for it."

"I even sent Merrick a copy of my Fanny Brice album for Christmas."

"I would hate to have to go back to clubs," she says. "But I wouldn't mind playing a few weeks each year, just to make some money, then maybe I could afford to do shows for David Merrick."

"I'm sorry," she said, "if I sound bitter. It's because I am."

'Hazel'—Human Cactus But Marshmallow Soft

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Arthur Treacher made the "Perfect Butler" famous in movies but Shirley Booth, we suspect, will be remembered a lot longer as the loveable gal on television who made the Imperfect Maid even more famous.

But if you haven't already noticed, it's all a big trick. "Hazel," the human cactus with a marshmallow heart, is no maid. Shirley is a magician, you see, and her wondrous sleight-of-hand(some) acting makes you think you are watching maid-faces-life.

She's too modest, of course, to admit to the Booth slyness which she uses like a mixer blending laughs with tears. But she does confess to the plot trickery.

"I'm not really playing a maid," she smiled. "I'm a three-in-one domestic sometimes called Mother."

The mother image in "Hazel" is one of the reasons the show is one of the few big hits of television this season. She's a character everyone can identify themselves with.

She's "Mother Knows Best" with a feather duster in her hand and that marshmallow for a heart masquerading under the name of "Hazel."

The other reason for the show's big success, of course, is Shirley. It is one of those rare combinations of slick actress meets slick role.

Most series take a while to jell. "Shirley," says director Bill Russell, "hit the bull's-eye almost immediately."

Peggy On Road

If you've wondered what happened to Peggy Cass, who has been a panelist recently on "To Tell the Truth," the truth is that she's on the road with a show, "Everybody Loves Opal." Peggy is also slated to star in a musical at the Dallas State Fair in July.

Many a star looks upon the family budget as a financial brake that usually needs re-lining!

Kaye Feuds With Producer Merrick

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—This is to inform the family and friends of Kaye Ballard that she is not rich, wealthy, affluent or loaded.

Miss Ballard says the idea has permeated her circle of relatives and acquaintances that she has all kinds of money, chiefly because she's been so successful in "Carnival" and she appears every week on The Perry Como Show.

"This has been the luckiest year for me," she says. "I'm doing great—but I'm making less money than I did before I got so lucky."

"I was making $2,000 a week or better," she says. "But I wanted to be on Broadway. David Merrick offered me $200 a week to do the part in 'Carnival', but if I wanted to make more money, I should stay in night clubs."

She took the "Carnival" part, for the salary which was offered, but she isn't overly enthusiastic about the pay scale.

"If it wasn't for the Como Show I couldn't pay the rent."

Miss Ballard also is upset about the upcoming musical about the late Fanny Brice. For years, this project has been close to her heart.

"It was my idea originally. I researched it, I recorded it, I took the idea to Jule Styne (the composer). And, of course, I wanted very badly to play the part of Fanny Brice. Now Merrick is planning to do it—with Anne Bancroft. If I have to lose the part, I'm glad it's to someone as wonderful as Anne Bancroft. But I am unhappy about not even getting a chance to read for it."

"I even sent Merrick a copy of my Fanny Brice album for Christmas."

"I would hate to have to go back to clubs," she says. "But I wouldn't mind playing a few weeks each year, just to make some money, then maybe I could afford to do shows for David Merrick."

"I'm sorry," she said, "if I sound bitter. It's because I am."

Profitable Youth

Paul Hanning, creator and producer of "Beverly Hillsbillies," a new comedy half hour series starting on CBS-TV this fall, went all the way back to his boyhood for the idea. He used to spend his summers in a camp in the Ozarks and got to know and like the people he met in the hills. He feels that in casting the new show he has come across the perfect man to head his hillbilly clan, veteran Buddy Ebsen.

Carries Tradition

Many adult viewers of "The Flintstones" will remember Broadway star and matinee idol, the late Alan Dinehart. Today his son carries on the family show business tradition, but behind the scenes, as associate producer to producers Bill Hanna and Joseph Barbera of "The Flintstones."
